NEW YORK (AP) — Premier Cyrille Adoula of the Congo was flying to New York today to assure the U.N. assembly that his government and the U.N. Congo command are ending the secession of Katanga Province as quickly as possible.

Will Talk Today
The Congo's premier was scheduled to speak to the assembly at U.N. headquarters here this afternoon. He was expected to tell the 104-nation group that further U.N. debate on the Congo at this time would only hinder efforts to extend his government's control over his vast, unruly African country.

The U.N. Security Council met briefly Tuesday in response to a Soviet charge that Katanga President Moise Tshombe had not ended his province's defiance of the central government and expelled white mercenaries employed in his army, as demanded by the council. Despite Soviet objections, the council adjourned—and set no date to resume debate—in deference to Adoula's cabled protest that debate now would only rock the boat.

Adoula, 40, has insisted that five of the Congo's six provinces are now under the control of his central government in Leopoldville and that Tshombe and his supporters are trying to work out a satisfactory solution of their differences with the Leopoldville regime.

Gizenga Not Target
Western delegates also expected Adoula to assure the assembly that Antoine Gizenga, his pro-Communist rival now under arrest in Leopoldville, would not be murdered as Premier Patrice Lumumba was.

Gizenga, after Lumumba's death, proclaimed himself premier of the Congo, established himself in Stanleyville, and got the recognition of the Communist bloc and such African countries as Ghana, Guinea and the United Arab Republic.

Last summer Gizenga made a political agreement with Adoula and accepted a vice premiership in his government. But a few weeks later he returned to Stanleyville and tried unsuccessfully to establish his own government in the northeast Congo. His chief military supporters eventually went over to Adoula and Gizenga was arrested and brought to Leopoldville after the Congo Parliament censured him.

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail Menshikov, former Soviet ambassador to the United States, has been appointed foreign minister of the Russian Federal Republic, Tass announced today.

Tanks in Paris to Guard Against Rightist Coup

PARIS (AP) — French army tanks converged on Paris today to forestall any attempt by the right-wing Secret Army to overthrow President Charles de Gaulle as reports of an imminent peace pact for Algeria persisted.

With mounted machine guns, two squadrons totaling 32 tanks moved on the capital to give armored support to 25,000 riot police alerted against the threat of an uprising by the rightist underground.

De Gaulle will address the nation by radio and television Monday night in what shaped up as a crucial statement on the long secret negotiations with the Algerian National Liberation Front to end the seven-year rebellion.

French public opinion was being prepared for a deal with the rebels to carry out De Gaulle's policy of putting Algeria on the path to independence.

Well-informed diplomatic sources said the agreement already had been drafted and needed only the formal signatures of both sides.

France's allies reportedly have been notified that the De Gaulle regime seriously fears an attempted coup by the right-wing extremists either in France or Algeria—or in both places—when the peace accord is announced.

There were reports that some French officials hoped to provoke the Secret Army into an uprising in advance of a peace announcement on the theory that a premature putsch would be easier to crush—at least in metropolitan France.

Security forces also were reinforced in hotbeds of rightist terrorism in Algeria. Two hundred crack assault commandos moved into Algiers Thursday to reinforce French troops already put on emergency footing.

Lancer Aides to Air Benefits for $5,300

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Top officers of Lancer Industries Inc. testify at a public hearing today on what they received in return for $5,300 they paid Assembly Speaker Joseph F. Carlino.

The Assembly Committee on Ethics listed the Lancer officials among witnesses for the second day of hearings on a charge that Carlino violated the state code of ethics by serving as a director and legal advisor to Lancer.

Rocky, Carlino Soon
Gov. Rockefeller, backing Carlino, and Carlino himself, will appear next week.

Democratic Assemblyman Mark Lane, who brought the charge, has said that Lancer exploited Carlino's state position in its business dealings, and that it had advanced knowledge of details of a fallout-shelter law.

The Republican speaker has said he received $5,000 for providing legal services to Lancer and $300 for attending three meetings of the Board of Directors, from which he resigned a week after the state passed a law to encourage construction of fallout shelters.

He has denied a conflict of interest existed.

Basic Decision Must
Lane holds that Carlino violated the code of ethics by serving as a director and counsel to Lancer and accepting fees at a time when the Legislature was dealing with fallout-shelter legislation.

The committee will have to make a basic decision on this point.

Highlights of the opening-day hearing:

1. Lane said he had "no knowledge whatsoever" as to the accuracy of statements, attributed to Lancer officials, that they had Carlino in their hip pocket.

2. Extensive testimony was given as to breakdowns in business relations between Lancer and companies headed by men Lane called in support of his charges.

Critical of Quiz
Warren C. Adams, a shelter manufacturer, renewed his statement, made several times previously, that Lancer officials had boasted of having Carlino "in our hip pocket."

3. Worthington J. Thompson of Bethesda, Md., said he had given Lancer a franchise to sell a shelter he had developed, but the arrangement fell through and his dealings with Lancer had since been bad.

Lane was critical of the way Adams had been interrogated and said after the hearing that he hoped the committee would be as sharp with Lancer officials.

Estimate Million Vehicles Are to Cross Area Span

More than a million vehicles are expected to be clocked this year on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, the New York State Bridge Authority reported today.

It nearly reached the million mark in 1961 when 994,035 vehicles were clocked, and travel over the span since its opening on Feb. 2, 1957, has shown a steady increase. The total since opening date, as of the end of last month, the authority reported, was 4,326,246 vehicles.

Completion of the Route 209 by-pass, now under construction west of the city, is expected to boost travel over the span considerably. The new route will bring more direct connections with Routes 209 and 28 as well as 9W and secondary roads.

In its first year 639,418 vehicles were clocked. The Kingston-Rhinecliff ferry, in its best year, carried only 96,089 vehicles. In the opening year the west approach ended at Route 32. Some time thereafter a spur was built to connect the approach with Route 9W.

The span, along with the Rip Van Winkle, Mid-Hudson and Bear Mountain bridges are under control of the authority, which now also operates the Newburgh-Beacon ferry pending completion of the Newburgh-Beacon Bridge, which is slated to open to traffic in November, 1963.

Diplomatic sources said the draft agreement would provide:

A transitional period of six months during which Algeria would be governed by a French-Moslem provisional executive. It would organize and supervise the referendum to let the territory choose its political future, and the Moslem majority in the territory is certain to choose independence.

French troops would remain in Algeria until the post-independence government raises its own forces for the maintenance of law and order.

Would Have Option
European residents of Algeria would have the option of choosing either Algerian or French nationality, and those who retain French citizenship can remain in the territory with the status of "privileged foreigners." The French government will assist those who move to France with financial aid.

The North African territory seethed with violence despite the reports of an impending peace agreement.

The French army wiped out a rebel hideout in an Oran suburb, killing 6 rebels and capturing 11. Army sources said the Muslim terrorist gangs were mushrooming and most were in their late teens.

European extremists and Moslems clashed in Algiers and Oran Thursday. At least 2 persons were reported killed and 13 wounded.

Oum Calls Off Talks On Laos

Pro-U. S. Premier Assails Attacks

LUANG PRABANG, Laos (AP) — Premier Prince Boun Oum, angered by Pathet Lao attacks on the village of Nam Tha, called off a meeting with neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma today. As a result the prospects for early formation of a unified government plunged.

Government Stronghold
The pro-American premier sent word to Souvanna that he did not think it was a propitious time to meet in view of the attack on Nam Tha, government stronghold 100 miles northwest of this royal capital.

Souvanna, who had been expected here today, thereupon canceled his visit. He was scheduled to arrive from the rebel headquarters of Xieng Khouang for an audience with King Savang Vathana. It had been expected that the visit would lead to further talks with Boun Oum on formation of a three-party government headed by Souvanna.

Souvanna's half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, was expected to be the third party represented in the new government.

Demands Call Back
In his message to Souvanna, Boun Oum demanded that the estimated six battalions that attacked Nam Tha be pulled back.

The fall of Nam Tha would mean the rebel occupation of several thousand square miles in the northwest corner of Laos bordering Red China. Enemy mortars began shelling the village air strip Thursday from a range of a little over three miles.

Have Heart, Plug Gaps, Ike Message To Republicans

By DIAL TORGERSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It is heart which wins wars," said Dwight D. Eisenhower, "whether on the battlefields or in peace."

He stood before a crowded hall Thursday night for what was supposed to be a brief warmup talk—and turned it into a ringing plea for fighting heart among his fellow Republicans.

"It is heart which keeps us plugging," said the former president, "without ever admitting defeat."

Ike was the main speaker on a cross-country telecast studded with names of top Republicans. But the national TV audience did not hear the off-the-cuff pep talk Ike delivered earlier to a throng estimated by GOP sources at 10,000 persons.

He stretched the three-minute greeting into seven minutes, much of it more spirited than his TV (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Says Need Is Growing For Vocational Study

The growing and continuing need of boys with a background in trade electronics was cited by Michael Aronica, director of the Vocational Education in the Kingston City Schools, Consolidated, at the board's February session Thursday night, as he made several recommendations to expand and improve his department.

Board members listened with interest as Aronica disclosed that several area firms have indicated that they can hire four to six boys annually into their companies, and he urged that a trade electronics course be instituted as soon as possible. Other recommendations included accepting students in the Vocational Education program, only students with interest in learning skills offered; expand the program to include students from school districts outside the Kingston School District and the appointment of a vocational counselor to work with the guidance department and to visit area schools to tell of the program's advantages. Aronica also disclosed that if a bill before the legislature is approved that the Kingston Vocational School will become one of six or seven Vocational Area Technical Schools in the state.

The consensus of the board favored Aronica's recommendations and it was suggested by one member, Howard L. Fox, that a greater effort be made to "sell" the program to the students.

Want Work Done March 2

In other business, contractors at present working on clean-ups at the four rural schools have been notified by letter that the work should be completed by March 2, according to Whitney Murphy, representative of Perkins & Will, school architects. He also said that work at Schools No. 5 and No. 6 should be completed by mid-March.

In commenting on construction at the two new schools, the Junior High School at Forsyth Park and Mary's Avenue Elementary School, he said the work was going along exceptionally well, thanks to the continuing open winter. He said I. and O. A. Slutzky Co. of Hunter, general contractors, estimated this week that the Junior High School would be completed by June of 1963 and that the Mary's Avenue School should be finished by the opening of school next September.

The board approved a recommendation from Dr. Soper that the appointment of 14 teachers be authorized, if they are needed. In his report Dr. Soper said four additional elementary school teachers might be needed; six and a half in the high school, two physical education instructors, a counselor and a speech correction teacher.

Watching Virus Situation

The superintendent also informed the board that illnesses by virus were increasing. He said absenteeism was averaging about 15 per cent in the various schools and added that he was keeping a watchful eye on the situation.

The board meetings heard a report by Finance Chairman David Kline on the data processing equipment and it was tentatively agreed that the board would visit schools in the area already using such equipment for a first-hand view of the operation. A request also was made to Dr. Soper that the staff give a concise written report on the ad-

Teachers Get Advancements Through Board

The Board of Education of the Kingston City Schools, Consolidated, at its February meeting Thursday night placed 40 teachers in its system on tenure; advanced 45 teachers to the third year of probation and advanced 58 teachers to the second year of probation. At the same time it was disclosed that contracts of nine teachers would not be renewed.

Of the 40 teachers placed on tenure, 11 are at the secondary school level; seven in the elementary grades and the remainder in special classifications such as art, music, junior high, nurse-teacher, physical education, kindergarten, guidance counselor, psychologist and dental hygienist. They include: Carlton Bell, Robert Boyle, John Buchal, Mary Buchal, Ruth I. Burke, Barbara A. Clark, Lorraine Den- is, Louis DiPietro, Fern Fajeta, Barbara Finley, Robert Fitzmaurice, Anna Foster, Bernadette Goddard, Thomas Gironi, Nancy Grim, Lowell Hellard, Katherine A. ## GOP Prepares for Campaign

Spending, Fakery Are Charged to Democrats

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans across the nation poured out cash for the party till Thursday night along with cries that Democrats are grabbing for more power with "profligate spending" and political fakery.

And the GOP faithful heard what some of them thought sounded like a political war whoop, not so much for 1962 as for 1964, from Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

17 Parties Held

The Republicans spent the evening at 17 party get-togethers in 17 cities, tied together for an hour by closed circuit television. This was the warm-up and kickoff for the congressional election campaign of 1962.

The oratory at the parties followed the usual political pattern of swinging away at the opposition, upholding the GOP cause with professions of confidence, and holding up the party as the great hope of the nation for getting sound, sensible, responsible government.

This was the other side of the record the Democrats played on Jan. 20—the first anniversary of the New Frontier—when they staged a fund-raising banquet that drew people to Washington from over the country.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower paced the parade of Republican speakers. It was the former president who accused the Democrats of profligate spending and "living on a flood of I.O.U.s." He and other GOP oratorical talent said the opposition is reaching for a more powerful central government and controls.

Eisenhower urged the Republicans to discard such tags as "liberal" and "conservative," to (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Atlas Booster Is Expected to Be Fixed by Saturday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)

—John H. Glenn Jr.'s Atlas booster is expected to be repaired by Saturday signaling a resumption of tests aimed at rocketing him into orbit about the earth on Feb. 13.

Trouble developed in the Atlas fueling system Tuesday while Project Mercury officials were preparing for a Thursday launching. The effort was put off until Feb. 13, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Thursday that this is still the target date.

The NASA statement said that repairs "are expected to be completed by Saturday and retesting of all systems to begin at that time."

Glenn is scheduled to orbit three times around the globe, landing in the Atlantic Ocean 800 miles southeast of here 4 hours 50 minutes after launching. NASA said no problems developed in the "Friendship 7" spacecraft as a result of the Atlas fuel leak.

Plumbing Inspector Plans Action on Work at School

Kingston Plumbing Inspector Charles J. Kelly today charged that an unlicensed plumber is doing work at the new Mary's Avenue elementary school and disclosed that he is starting action in an effort to have a temporary injunction brought to halt the work.

A special meeting of the Examining Board of Plumbers of the city of Kingston has been called for Saturday morning, Kelly said, at which time he will give his findings and recommend that the board immediately request Corporation Counsel Harry Gold to start temporary injunction proceedings against Bank

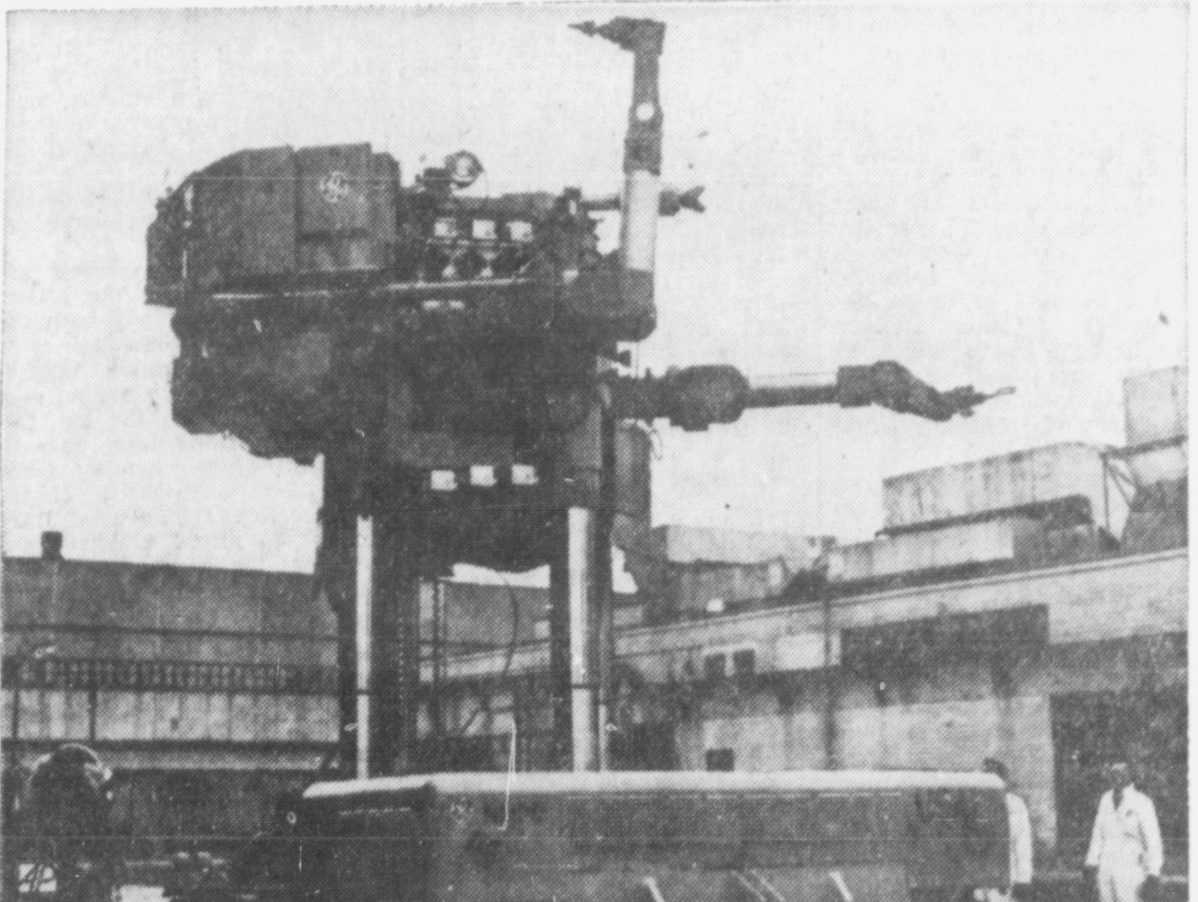

Bros., plumbing contractors, until an opinion can be obtained from the state attorney general. He also said he plans to set up a joint meeting between the examining board and the executive board of Plumbers Local 223 "to bring this very dangerous health hazard to their attention."

The inspector said that he informed Bernard Singer, a member of the Board of Education, the day after the contract was awarded on Dec. 7, that Bank Bros. was not licensed in Kingston and added that Singer told him he had so informed the board.

Bank Brothers, he said took the city plumbing examination on Jan. 24 and failed to pass it. He added that Thursday, Feb. 1, he took an inspection tour of the Mary's Avenue construction and found that some 250 feet of four-inch cast iron pipe and fittings had been installed and covered, contrary to the city plumbing code and also contrary to the code setup by Perkins & Will, school architects. He said he took pictures of this work before witnesses and will show them at Saturday's meeting of the examining board and the subsequent joint meeting of that board and the executive board of Plumbers Local 223.

The general specifications set down by Perkins & Will, he said under Article 47 state, that "all building construction work and all mechanical installation and appliances connected therewith shall comply with all state and municipal laws and regulations and with all local ordinances and rules pertaining to this work." The general city law he added under section 53 reads:

Groundhogs Don't Like It Either, Return to Burrows

QUARRYVILLE, Pa. (AP)—

Two groundhogs, considered the official legendary weather prophets, emerged from their holes today and saw their shadows, signifying six more weeks of winter.

Rubbing a long winter's hibernation from his eyes, Punxsutawney Phil was the first to emerge in Punxsutawney. At 7:29 a.m., he shuffled dutifully from his snugery, squinted and spied his shadow on a frozen Gobblers Knob. He scampered back to his cozy burrow.

The Quarryville groundhog saw his shadow at 7:51 1/2 a.m., according to Robert W. Herr, chairman of the Slumbering Lodge of Groundhogs here.

Herr said Dr. Carl Metzger, keeper of the field, was on watch on Crow Foot at the time the groundhog emerged, saw his shadow reflected on the snow and went back into his hole.

Attired in tall hats and long white night shirts, the members of the two groundhog clubs started out before dawn for the woods and valleys seeking out the legendary weather prophet.

They carried divining rods and other gadgets, part of their annual Feb. 2 caper.

As legend has it, if the little beast sees his shadow, it is a sign of more winter, and back he'll scamper into his hole. If there is no shadow he'll stay in the open, signifying an early spring.

Homes of Clerics Are Damaged by Homemade Bomb

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Homemade bombs damaged the residences Thursday night of two ministers who have been vocal in their criticism of rightwing extremism, police reported.

The two men, the Rev. John G. Simmons and the Rev. Brooks R. Walker, learned of the bombings while appearing together in a panel discussion entitled, "The Extreme Right—Threat to Democracy?"

Detectives said families of both men narrowly escaped injury in the explosions.

A police guard was ordered for the home of the third panel member, actress Marsha Hunt.

Both ministers live in the suburban San Fernando Valley, and both told of receiving previous threats and anonymous telephone calls.

The Rev. Mr. Simmons, pastor of St. Matthews Lutheran Church in North Hollywood, said the blast at his home wouldn't change his determination to battle what he called the radical right wing.

"I will not compromise my beliefs," he told a newsmen.

The Rev. Mr. Walker is pastor of the Emerson Unitarian Church in Canoga Park. He said that in addition to his appearance Thursday night, he has been attacking some phases of the ultra-conservative movement on radio.

The panel discussion was sponsored by the Los Angeles Business and Professional Chapter of the American Jewish Congress. It was held at Temple Sinai in West Los Angeles.

Workers Restore Cables in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The break in the main telephone cables here was like chopping the hub out of a wheel.

More than 100 men, working around the clock, were restoring to service gradually today the 10,000 circuits that were knocked out when a retaining wall collapsed at Kansas City's main telephone plant Thursday.

Local telephone service wasn't affected, but the break cut long-distance lines and coaxial cables that link missile sites, Air Force bases, television stations, press services, boards of trade and surrounding towns.

Those lines fan out over the country like the spokes of a wheel. The steel retaining wall tumbled at an excavation where an addition to the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. plant is to be built.

The company brought equipment and specialists from Dallas, St. Louis and Chicago to tackle the tedious job of digging out and splicing the thousands of circuits.

Canton Town Hall Destroyed by Fire Loss Is $150,000

CANTON, N.Y. (AP)—The third major fire in this vicinity in 24 hours destroyed the century-old Canton Town Hall today, ruined several business places and caused a power failure in this Northern New York village of 5,000 while the temperature was 30 below zero.

No one was reported injured. The loss was estimated at $150,000.

All town and village records and those of at least three insurance companies were destroyed by flames that leaped 100 feet into the frosty air from the five-story, grey granite building.

Congress Looks To President on Stockpile Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) —Congress looked to President Kennedy today to pave the way for an investigation of the nation's war-emergency stockpile by formally removing the lid of secrecy from its contents.

The President already has said "the cold facts on this matter must be open to the public" and suggested that a Senate subcommittee, headed by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., undertake the inquiry.

Symington interpreted Kennedy's remarks at Wednesday's news conference as a "green light" from the White House for his subcommittee to have "a good look at what's going on."

"We have always been told before these items could not be declassified," Symington said at a news conference of his own.

But, a few hours before Symington met reporters, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., got into the act. He said his joint Senate-House Committee on Defense expenditures would study the $7.7-billion accumulation of metals, minerals and tools.

Byrd said he had written to Kennedy, asking him to issue an executive order declassifying items in the stockpile to the "maximum limit consistent with the national interest."

Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., chimed in with a statement that the joint Senate-House Committee on Defense Production, which he heads, has been inquiring regularly into the stockpile situation.

The Symington and Byrd groups also have been actively investigating the stockpile over the past few years. All three groups have been under the handicap of not being able to stir up public interest since much of the information made available by the government has been classified.

He joined IBM in April, 1951 as an accounting machine operator at Poughkeepsie.

He was transferred to Kingston in January, 1955 as an accounting machine operator and was named a specialist in machine accounting in late 1955. One year later he was named a department technician also in machine accounting and in late 1957 manager of the machine accounting department, second shift, a post he has held until his present appointment.

Governor Scores 'Fakery' in JFK Urban Proposal

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller of New York addressed 3,500 Iowa Republicans Thursday night and accused President Kennedy of using "political fakery" in trying to set up a department of urban affairs and planning to name a Negro to head it.

Rockefeller spoke first without text and then via closed circuit telecast at a fund-raising dinner in which the diners ate fried chicken out of box lunches.

On both occasions the New York governor was given standing ovations.

In his main talk, beamed to 16 other GOP rallies across the nation, Rockefeller referred to the chief of the federal housing and home finance agency, Robert Weaver, a Negro, as an "outstanding American."

Then he used the "political fakery" term in referring to the President's plan to appoint a Negro as head of a proposed urban department with cabinet rank.

"If the President is so concerned about naming an outstanding Negro to the cabinet, why wasn't Bob Weaver appointed to the cabinet in the first place?" Rockefeller asked.

"He found a cabinet post for his brother all right. But he didn't find one for Bob Weaver."

Ex-Aid Official, 2 Others Indicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indictments charging conspiracy to defraud the government have been issued by a grand jury against a former U.S. foreign aid official and two other men.

The indictments, announced Thursday by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, were returned by a District of Columbia federal grand jury. They named Edward T. McNamara, Gerald A. Peabody and Willis H. Bird in connection with U.S. foreign aid contracts in Laos in 1956 and 1957.

McNamara, former public works and industrial officer for the U.S. International Cooperation Administration mission in Laos, now lives in Bloomfield, N.J.

Peabody, former president of Universal Construction, Ltd., of Bangkok, Thailand, and Bird, who was managing director of the company, are both believed to be living abroad.

The indictment alleges that between July 1956 and October 1957 McNamara received money and other valuables from Peabody and Bird, including a $10,000 mutual fund investment paid for by Bird in June 1957.

In return, McNamara allegedly helped Universal Construction, Ltd., obtain contracts, including one for a ferry ramp on the Mekong River in Laos. Low bid was $125,072, the indictment stated, but Universal got the job for $188,775.

Deaths

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Common Pleas Judge John J. Mahon, 71, who was a prosecutor at the Shepard murder trial in 1954, died Wednesday of cancer and kidney failure.

NEW YORK (AP)—Capt. Paul C. Greening, 81, a veteran mariner who once was honored with a Broadway ticker tape parade for leading a daring sea rescue, died Thursday. He was master of the United States liner President Harding on Oct. 19, 1925, when he and his crew rescued 28 seamen from the sinking Italian freighter Ignazio Florio during a mid-Atlantic hurricane.

Seeks New Trial

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A new trial is being sought by a former soldier serving a life sentence at Alcatraz for killing a sergeant at Ft. Dix in 1952.

Robert L. Williams of New Paltz, N.Y., made the request Thursday to Federal Court Judge Thomas Madden. He claimed he was not mentally fit to assist his lawyer at his trial.

Williams, who was stationed at Ft. Dix, was convicted of killing Sgt. Herman Weiner of Philadelphia by striking him with an iron bar.

March Trial Due For Red Pilot

BARI, Italy (AP)—The Bulgarian pilot whose camera-equipped jet crashed in Italy after making two passes over a secret missile base is expected to go on trial in March on charges of political and military espionage. Lt. Miluse Solakov of the Bulgarian air force faces a sentence of 15-24 years imprisonment.

Formal charges of espionage were served on the pilot Thursday in the Bari jail's dispensary where he is recovering from the concussion and fractures of the left arm and collarbone he suffered in the crash.

Serving of the warrant automatically set in motion a pre-trial investigation. Acting as a one-man grand jury, the investigating judge has the power to order acquittal, but legal circles considered this unlikely. They said Solakov, 22, most likely will go on trial in March before a court composed of two judges and a jury of six.

The Bulgarian legation in Rome reiterated the Communist government's contention that Solakov had lost his way on a training flight. But it said a legal expert would be assigned to his defense once the legation receives formal notification of the accusation.

Under Italian law, Solakov can be assisted in his legal defense only by Italian lawyers.

London Defends Brake on Wages

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's Conservative government today defended its controversial wage-freeze arrangements and said it will continue a policy of restraint despite current strikes and threats of walkouts.

The treasury issued an official pamphlet stating the brake on pay increases, in operation since last July, is essential to the country's economic well-being.

National production has been rising at only about 2½ per cent per head a year, it said.

"It is accordingly necessary that the increase of wages and salaries, as of other incomes, should be kept within this figure during the next phase," it said.

The government has promised a slight easing of the policy March 31.

Super Brood Cow

A New York state Holstein cow has been designated as a "super brood cow." The cow is owned by Fred Baer of Fred Baer Farms, Fort Plain and has been designated as a Gold Medal Dam by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

The award represents the highest possible recognition for a "super brood cow" of the black and white dairy breed.

Fraeholme Fatsy Peach qualified with three of three eligible offspring meeting high standards of production and body conformation. Her three officially tested daughters have records averaging 14,884 pounds of milk and 574 pounds of butterfat on a two milkings a day, 305 days, mature equivalent basis.

Jersey Sit-in CORE Group Is Arrested After City Hall Stand

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP)—A dozen sit-in demonstrators, who spent the night in City Hall to protest against alleged racial school segregation, were arrested today.

The arrests of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) led group followed an ultimatum from city officials.

The sit-in began Thursday night after a Board of Education meeting, to which about 90 white and Negro citizens came to back a demand that Negro pupils be admitted to what is now a predominantly white school.

The board refused to take any action and the CORE group vowed not to budge until the city takes "positive steps to desegregate the city school system."

The appeal to the board followed a refusal by the principal of the Donald A. Quarles School earlier in the day to register nine Negro pupils now attending another school.

The Quarles school is named for the late deputy secretary of defense, who previously was mayor of Englewood. It has fewer than 10 Negroes among 355 pupils registered.

There are no segregation statutes in this city of 26,000, but housing patterns in the city have tended to make school districts predominantly white or Negro.

The sit-ins, about 55 strong, took over the chamber after disrupting two school meetings with shouting and chanting.

A wild demonstration that followed the election of a CORE leader during the second of the hearings caused the board to leave the building. The demonstrators, both white and Negro, then announced that they would stay all night.

R. D. Terpenning, Former New Paltz Town Clerk, Dies

Raymond D. Terpenning, 77, of 66 Plattkill Avenue, New Paltz, former town clerk, died Thursday at Kingston Hospital after a brief illness.

Mr. Terpenning had been town clerk for 16 years prior to retirement a few years ago. For a number of years, he was employed by the New York City Board of Water Supply. Later he operated a Shell service station in New Paltz for many years.

Born in New Paltz, Nov. 26, 1884, a son of the late George and Rachel DuBois Terpenning, he was educated at New Paltz schools. In 1910, he married the former Lulu Dayton.

Mr. Terpenning was a member of the New Paltz Reformed Church, Kingston Lodge No. 10, F&AM, and the New Paltz Fire Department. He was a former member of the Paltz Club, New Paltz Rod and Gun Club and the Huguenot Grange of New Paltz.

Surviving are his wife; a son, Dayton Terpenning of Glen Rock, N. J. and two grandsons, Dayton Jr., serving in the U. S. Navy and Buckley Terpenning at home; a brother, George Terpenning of New Rochelle; two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Johnson of New Paltz and Mrs. Marjorie Oates of Rochester.

Funeral services will be held Monday 1 p. m. at the Pine Funeral Home, Inc., New Paltz, with the Rev. G. J. Wullschlegel, pastor of the New Paltz Reformed Church, officiating. Burial will be in the New Paltz Rural Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday afternoon and evening.

Population of the U. S. increased from 151.3 million in 1950 to 179.3 million in 1960.

Spending, Fakery

get together, to start working hard in unity.

"With a nation and a world at stake," he said, "let's roll up our sleeves and get going."

Heaviest Blast by Rocky

It was Rockefeller, trying for another term as governor this year and perhaps for the White House in 1964, who set off the heaviest blasts at President Kennedy and his administration.

Rockefeller accused Kennedy of political fakery in the way the President handled a proposal to establish a federal department of urban affairs and to install housing administrator Robert C. Weaver as the first Negro in the Cabinet.

Goldwater Has His Say

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, a favorite of the conservatives for a shot at the presidency, got in his licks. He contended that leftwingers dominate the New Frontier and that the GOP must "lead the way to fiscal sanity and responsibility."

While he was at it, the senator gizzed Kennedy for touching off an upcoming investigation of what the President called excessive stockpiling of emergency materials for defense.

The Republicans, Goldwater said, merely carried out contracts let under the Roosevelt and Truman administrations, so "we welcome an investigation into the bad decisions and poor judgment of the Democratic party." Kennedy, he said, could have voted eight times to cut the stockpiles while serving in Congress but did so only once.

Nixon Sidelined
Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who dropped a close election to Kennedy in the 1960 presidential race, was sidelined in the Republican political doings in a couple of ways.

He was supposed to speak in Fresno, Calif., but was put in bed in Los Angeles with a virus infection. Furthermore, it was Eisenhower rather than the 1960 standard bearer to whom the GOP gave feature role for the only full-scale speech of the entire TV program.

Actor George Murphy, filling in for Nixon, and all the rest were allotted no more than four or five minutes apiece.

Eisenhower spoke from Le Angeles. Rockefeller from Des Moines. Goldwater from Cleveland. The 14 other cities had their own speakers, too.

For Pop and Money
The rallies were staged to pump pep and money into the GOP for the oncoming election-year. They were dubbed R.S.V.P. affairs: "Republicans Start Victory Program."

Turnouts ranged from a couple of hundred to several thousand, and not all the customers were paying ones. But Los Angeles reported that 83 of the tickets there went for $1,000 each.

Party officials estimated in advance that 30,000 people would attend the dinners and that the financial gross would hit $1.5 million. The Republican National Committee alone is more than $600,000 in the red.

The national chairman, Rep. William E. Miller of New York, presided from Washington as the master of ceremonies for the private TV show.

From the Washington audience came a sprinkling of boos, but more applause, when Rockefeller appeared on the giant TV screen.

The New York governor had discarded a rather mild recital of Republican deeds in his state for a slashing attack on Kennedy and the urban department proposal.

This, Rockefeller said, was an attempt to "gain direct political control over the nation's big cities." The administration, he said, injected a completely unrelated racial issue—the promise to appoint Weaver to the Cabinet—because it is afraid to let the plan for an urban affairs department stand on its own merits.

"What is this but political fakery," he asked, bearing down on his words.

"It is up to us as Republicans to expose the Democrats in this kind of demagoguery and deception as they grasp for centralization of power."

Have Heart, Ike

delivery. The audience at the "We Miss Ike" rally cheered a full three minutes when he finished.

Eisenhower told the gathering that the GOP should fight to cut down the percentage of the Democratic edge even in areas where Republicans know they can't win.

"We had a paper-thin defeat in '60," said Eisenhower. "Still, it was a defeat. Any one of 100 things happening differently could have brought us victory. What we have is the job of plugging all the little gaps."

It takes fighting spirit to do this said Eisenhower—spirit worked up to a real pitch.

He added: "You yourself are more important than the dollars that you give, if along with the dollars you give yourself."

The rally at Olympic Auditorium wasn't primarily a fund raising affair (although the hat, figuratively speaking, was passed). That part of the evening came later, when a gathering of the wealthier GOP faithful paid $1,000 a ticket to attend a dinner and reception at Eisenhower at a downtown hotel. An official said 93 tickets were sold.

The transport was making a low-level turn when it plunged and burst into flames.

Traffic Deaths In State Are 138 Over 1960 Record

ALBANY — Traffic deaths in New York State during 1961 totalled 2,226, an increase of 138 over the 10-year-low records of 2,088 in 1960.

December contributed heavily to the 1961 increase, the Department of Motor Vehicles reported. A total of 310 persons was killed in traffic accidents last month, making it the most deadly month on the highways in the state's recent history.

Trend Appeared Lower

"Until the beginning of December," Motor Vehicle Commissioner Hults said, "it appeared that the 1961 total might be as low as the 1960 total, which was the lowest in a decade."

"The December toll, which exceeded the previous December by 94 ended the year on a tragic note even though the 1961 fatality record had been exceeded four times in the last 10 years and matched once."

Death figures since 1951 are: 1952-2,111; 1953-2,271; 1954-2,094; 1955-2,226; 1956-2,230; 1957-2,240; 1958-2,169; 1959-2,286; 1960-2,088; and 1961-2,226.

Commissioner Hults pointed out that the state's auto population increased between two and three per cent a year, and that this is bound to reflect in the state's accident picture.

Pedestrian deaths declined last year to 716, compared with 736 in 1960 and 825 in 1959.

Although total deaths increased by 138, total fatal accidents increased by 81, indicating there were more multiple fatalities last year than in the previous year.

Highest In History

December's deaths were the highest in the state's history for that month; the highest previous December was in 1953, when 301 were killed. The last month of 1960 was the lowest December in many years, with only 216 deaths.

The recent Christmas holiday was especially disastrous, with 44 deaths reported in 36 accidents. The previous Christmas holiday, only 26 were killed in 23 accidents.

Otherwise, the December deaths appeared spread generally throughout the month—slightly higher on weekends than the previous year, and much heavier than the previous December on Thursdays.

For January through November 1960, there had been 1,872 deaths, the lowest for the 11-month period in six years, for January through November in 1961, there had been 1,902 deaths.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., Feb. 2

I have always loved trees, and have invested in forests. Natural reserves such as oil, iron, copper, etc., do not reproduce themselves; forests are the only natural resource which does. Moreover, most forest land is now protected against fire by watchtowers and other means. Of course, you must pay taxes on individually owned forest land; hence you may prefer to hold stock in companies which own large forests. Among such companies I would mention Crown Zellerbach, Rayonier, Georgia-Pacific, and Weyerhaeuser.

Personal Holdings

I once had a large interest in the APW Paper Company of Albany, New York. This company had considerable forest acreage and a pulp mill in Sheet Harbour, Nova Scotia. Against the advice of the managers, Mr. Francis Dougherty and his brother of Old Town, Maine, I sold this Canadian acreage to William Randolph Hearst. I shall always regret this sale, especially as it resulted in my selling the paper mill in Albany.

I later invested the money in seven thousand acres of woodland in New Hampshire. This consists of various kinds: Not much spruce, but some very valuable pine and much second-growth hardwood. I am obliged to pay taxes on this acreage and do not expect to get much profit, but it should be a good inflation hedge and I love to see the trees grow summer and winter, holidays and Sundays, whatever the weather, and without any labor unions to supervise.

Studying the State of Maine

Two years ago I was invited by Mr. W. G. Robertson, president of the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad and his Board of Directors, to see the state's natural resources. Let me insert that I consider this railroad the best operated east of the Ohio River, due to Mr. Robertson. Maine's natural resources contain the woodlands of the Great Northern Paper Company and the profitable potato fields which supply much of the railroad's freight. These woodlands and potato fields have the same kind of soil, same rainfall, same sunshine, same temperature,—yet yield distinct products (newsprint and potatoes).

For my column this week let me ask why humans cannot eat wood as well as potatoes? Termites and other animals are able to do this. I believe the time will come when we humans will eat wood, though not in the form of sawdust. We cannot dissolve the cellulose in our stomachs, as certain animals are able to do. We humans must dissolve the cellulose before we put it into our stomachs.

What DuPont Has Done

The duPont Company of Wilmington, Del., is making nylon from air, water, and coal. DuPont is making rayon and other products from cellulose by passing a solution of it through spinnerets to form threads ready for weaving. Its latest development is the making of synthetic leather for the uppers of shoes. Artificial leather for soles is still made by the rubber interests and is very satisfactory.

I understand that the American Viscose Corporation is now using the cellulose of trees and dissolving same into a chemical and selling the product to manufacturers of "non-fattening" foods. Later, newspapers may be used; but I believe this will be sometime in the future as newspapers are now used for making corrugated paper cartons and need not be de-linked before being made into these pasteboard cartons. I, however, do believe that sometime we will cook our Sunday newspaper after it has been de-linked and dissolved! This seems ridiculous at the present time, but it is less wonderful than what the DuPonts have already done; and others have accomplished in radio and television.

De-linking and Other Details

Instead of burning old newspapers, Boy Scouts and others collect them for purposes above described. After the papers are chopped up and treated with chemicals, they are used for attractive packaging of all kinds of foods. This is becoming so important that the best commercial artists are being employed to design these packages.

This will increase the demand for paper even before we use Sunday newspapers for our dinners! It is even possible that newspapers will use a new quality of ink that will not require de-linking when the newspaper is used for food. Let me close by forecasting that the oil companies may perform a function in solving this problem.

Rescue Breathing Is Most Popular Health Booklet

ALBANY — Publications dealing with safety, cigarette smoking, child health, nutrition and dental health set the pace among the State Health Department's "Top 10" publications during 1961.

Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, State Health Commissioner, reported that the annual "Top 10" ratings are based on the number of copies of each department publication distributed on request to residents of New York State. The State Health Department has approximately 150 publications which are distributed on request to professional and lay audiences. During 1961, more than 2,500,000 pieces of department literature were distributed as a health service to New York State's citizens.

Ranking first in the "Top 10" was Rescue Breathing, an illustrated instruction booklet designed to teach the fundamentals of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Since this publication was first prepared in 1960, more than one million copies have been distributed on request to residents of the state.

The second most popular publication was Smoking—It's Up to You, a pamphlet designed to inform teen-agers of the health problems associated with cigarette smoking. This was followed by Kit Goes to the Dentist, a coloring book which explains the importance of dental health to young children, and the Baby Book, a 64-page booklet on infant care.

Copies of Department publications are available without cost to residents of New York State from all city and county health departments, district health offices, and from the Office of Public Health Education, 84 Holland Avenue, Albany 8.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

From time to time Kingstonians make trips to Washington, D. C., and have seen the "Land of Columbus" life-size painting in the Capitol Rotunda.

William Jordan, his wife and sister-in-law saw it and told me about it later. People from here have also visited the famous Freer Gallery of Art of the Smithsonian Institution, there.

It is nice to mention, that Charles Lange Freer is a Kingstonian. I had a phone call from a gentleman deeply interested in oriental art, his specialty being rugs. He has been in the gallery. I think in 1956. The reason being that it was the 100th Anniversary of Charles L. Freer's birthday, and a medal. I understand was struck, for that occasion and given to an outstanding person for certain art work. Perhaps I will have more particulars on this at a later date.

I do not think art has ever been so popular to the average person as it is today. In the 1890's and later, only the very rich seemed to enjoy buying pictures, and later either selling them or giving them to galleries. In those days, if you owned a hand-me-down picture, or family portrait that was on the wall, you did not go out and buy an oil painting no matter who painted it. Today, the large family photograph portraits are gone, the walls are bare, and the pictures are going back on the wall.

Even cardboard copies in wooden frames cost money today. Modern art is not for the daring today, it was years ago, but it is considered smart and ultra-ultra, even if it is hung upside down. Now and then brave people buy what they like from homespun painters and many times the pictures are real good.

I have the "Proud Possessors" by Aline B. Saarinen, which I obtained from Kingston City Library. It will tell you how millionaires bought up European art and brought it to the country. Much of it is in public galleries and can be enjoyed by all. Charles Lang Freer's story is in it. You will read about the Rockefellers, Peggy Guggenheim, J. Pierpont Morgan and many others. If you ever wondered what you could do with a million dollars, if you suddenly had it to spend this book has the answers. You will read about these people who had it to spend as they wished and see what they did with millions. They weren't always so happy about it.

I do not know what the Freer Gallery is worth at present with all its art, millions, I am sure. Anyway, admission is free. Wish he had built that gallery in Kingston, that would have brought people here, no doubt, from all over the world. The gallery is open every day, including Sunday, from 9 a. m. until 4:30 p. m. and is closed only on Christmas Day.

Permission can be had to copy objects in the Freer galleries, even to photograph them with tripod and flash. Many objects are not on display, as it is said, there are over 10,000 art pieces there, still if a student wishes to see any particular item he can make application at the administration office for such service. You can even have portable stools for use in the galleries.

Those who wish to use or see the gallery and need the use of a wheelchair, this too can be had on the application to the guard. All this, Charles Lang Freer, of Kingston, who died in 1919 is still giving to the people of the world, for free. He went to the schools of Kingston till he was 14, then he went to work.

ROMNEY'S CHANCES

Business is so highly regarded in the United States that it is strange how few business men have been considered for the presidency. Today one such has backers for the office. If things go well, he might have a chance for the GOP nomination.

This is George Romney, president of the American Motors Corporation. Now active in Michigan's constitutional convention, he is being urged to run for governor. As the Republicans have not elected a governor since 1946, they show some willingness to change their luck by nominating an entirely new type of candidate. Election as governor would doubtless launch Romney's presidential boom.

Romney might meet the objections urged against the three most prominent GOP possibilities. He is a new figure, as Nixon is not. He is less conservative than Senator Goldwater. His business experience might enable him to cut into Governor Rockefeller's strength. How he would shape up in a campaign is anybody's guess.

So far the only business man to get even a nomination has been Wendell Wilkie, the utilities magnate who unexpectedly carried off the GOP prize in 1940. Though he shared the common Republican lot of losing to Franklin D. Roosevelt, he got more popular votes than any Republican nominee before him. His record stood until General Eisenhower came along. Romney is a dark horse, but Wilkie's experience may encourage him to have a crack at the nomination.

NO CORNER ON TROUBLE

The old lady in the village was asked, "How is your church doing?" Her reply was, "Not well, but thank the Lord, the other churches are not doing any better."

This uncharitable but perhaps human viewpoint might, if it occurred to them, relieve the minds of certain Americans. They would be less dismayed with the conduct of our affairs if they appreciated that elsewhere things were no better. At least it might suggest that our leaders of the present and near past were not such blunderers after all.

Great Britain is disturbed over a business let-down, and is debating whether or not she can safely join the Common Market. France is torn in two over Algeria, and facing a possible revolt of the rightists. She also is wondering what will happen when DeGaulle leaves the scene. Even the Communist countries, whose leaders are considered in some quarters to be incomparable master planners, are suffering both political and economic pangs.

We could be doing better, but the truth is that the United States isn't doing so badly. Doubters have only to look at what's going on in the rest of the world.

A BOOST FOR MILK

The brothers Kennedy are doing their bit for the dairy industry. First the President spoke a few words at a press conference about the virtues of milk, saying that henceforth it would be served at every White House meal. Then a magazine story about the attorney general noted his penchant for quaffing chilled milk.

One gets the impression that, whereas the attorney general has a genuine taste for this beverage, the President acted out of a sense of duty. It was not the first time a political figure had done this sort of thing in a good cause. This does not alter the fact that the cause is indeed a good one, for a couple of reasons.

Milk consumption has suffered a considerable decline. This has hurt the dairy industry, including the farmers whose herds produce the milk. The second thing that makes any stimulus of milk-drinking worthwhile is that this beverage is one of the most healthful and economical of foods.

If the President can prompt Americans to drink more milk, so much to the good. But the dairy industry should also bear in mind the importance of finding other ways to boost consumption. There is great promise in more development work on new products. Increased milk-drinking would be only a partial solution.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY
FRITZ KREISLER

To have known Fritz Kreisler was to have tasted of the richness of centuries of human culture. During recent years, he and I spent our summers in the Berkshires and it was a joy to be with a man whose genius knew no limit. He was as much at home in Greek, Latin, and Hebrew as in the modern languages. He could discuss world politics in amazing detail. His knowledge of music was overwhelming and withal he was a modest man who was interested in the aspirations of the simplest, Tanglewood student.

During his last years, he was partially deaf and blind, the result of an accident when a truck hit and knocked him down and he lived in darkness. Even so, he did not lose his interest in the affairs of the world and a conversation with him was always an everlasting memory.

Two tragic occasions stand out in my memory. One was at the Dutch Treat Club when Fritz decided that he would try to play the piano and he could no longer strike the right notes. He was full of fun that night and could laugh at his mistakes.

The other was at Fiddletop, the home of Zino Francescatti in Monterey in the Berkshires. Our families were gossiping after lunch. Mrs. Harriet Kreisler always watched over Fritz motherly, fearful that he would be made miserable by his disabilities, but the two violinists got into a corner and had what might vulgarly be called a jam session. They played on and on, Kreisler showing Francescatti how he played Beethoven's Violin Concerto.

It was probably the last time that Kreisler played either the violin or the piano. He was a very happy man. He loved the Berkshires; he adored Francescatti; he was among friends. He let himself go.

I do not recall Kreisler coming to a Tanglewood concert after that. In fact, when I called on him during the following summer, he was already suffering from the numerous ailments that beset him. But we talked of the many worlds he loved.

To Kreisler, music was not something apart. It was a manifestation of life in all its richness. He composed perhaps 200 pieces in his lifetime, everything from the noblest music to a light opera, "Apple Blossom." For such a sentence as this, Fritz would have reprimanded me. He would have said that all music that is beautiful and that adds to the richness of life is good and that snobbery is always intolerable.

He loved the United States. Although during the frightful years of World War I, he suffered from a divided loyalty, he really never could think of his beloved Austria and his beloved America as separate or as enemies. In front of the Heaton Hall Hotel in Stockbridge, Massachusetts, stands a flagpole, erected in honor of Fritz Kreisler. I was present at the ceremonies and made a short address. The American flag was raised and flew each day during the season. It will be a permanent memorial to a noble soul. It will be his American memorial.

Fritz Kreisler was beyond doubt the greatest violinist of his day and although younger generations cannot hear him play, the phonograph and radio will continue to bring him to them as it will continue to bring him to future generations. He loved life and he loved humanity and he knew no rancor or envy, expecting the next generation to be more wonderful than the one he would leave behind. His sense of humor was as rich as his understanding of man was keen.

To him music was not a profession but an art that brought light and love into a world that was cursed by hate and prejudice and war. Music was for him the antithesis of evil and his heart was open to all the youngsters who came to Tanglewood to find the richness and beauty that music could bring into life. He was never a big man, aloof, he was always Fritz.

But he could no longer hear. Like Beethoven, music became not sound but the grandeur of the intellect. He could think; he could remember, but he could not listen to the violin which he loved so. These he gave to the Library of Congress in Washington to be loaned to great violinists who could play these noble instruments. (Copyright 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Happy Mother Scotches

Scare Tales of Epilepsy

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Here is a letter I felt I must share with you. "I am writing you in reference to a letter you received from a young lady about to be married, who asked whether or not the medication she was taking to control her epilepsy would interfere with her becoming pregnant."

"You are probably wondering why I am so interested. My reason is that I, too, am an epileptic to whom all kinds of frightening things were told regarding pregnancy and children. Probably the same things this young lady was told. However, thanks to my doctor I was able to put my mind at ease and not worry. I now have four children ranging from 7 years to 8 months old."

"All are in perfect health and I've never felt better than I do now. My spells have decreased immensely. So I know what it is to worry about something because I was once in the same spot as this young lady. And, with my doctor's assurances, I carried on as I know she can."

And here's a letter from a less charitable reader. "I felt like screaming when you advised a 35-year-old with a fibroid tumor to have her uterus removed, instead of radium or X-rays that would have saved the ovaries. So that then she would not have had to go through an artificial change."

"Weren't you trying to help the surgeons make a killing? Why can't you doctors be honest? How could you tell her she would have no more trouble than if she had her appendix removed? You know that's a fairy tale as she would have heat flashes, headaches, dizziness, depressed feelings and a million other complaints that you men know nothing about."

"I had the same operation performed you advised and I haven't felt good one day in the five years since I was operated on. I'm only 45 now and I feel like I was 101."

Dear "Reader," I'm sorry you think so poorly of me. But even sorer that you are so woefully misinformed. And, if you'll read my answer I'll try to straighten you out. The operation for removal of a fibroid uterus is called a hysterectomy (dis-ter-rec-tor-me).

Whether it is performed through an abdominal incision or through the vagina (abdominal or vaginal hysterectomy) and whether just the body of the uterus is removed or both the body and the cervix (where cancers are most apt to develop), the surgeon goes to great pains to save the ovaries for the very purpose of PREVENTING the later occurrence of an artificial "change."

On the other hand, when efforts are made to shrink uterine fibroids with radium or X-rays, as you suggest, the shrinkage is accomplished through PRODUCTION of an artificial menopause.

Hence the advice I gave the young woman was advanced for the purpose of saving her from the very distress you accuse me of inflicting on her. And the recommendation you suggest would inflict on her the very distress you would have her avoid. Maybe you ought to write on the blackboard 100 times, "I must not give advice until I know whereof I speak."

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

One of President Kennedy's favorite stories about House majority leader Carl Albert concerns the President's fall visit to Big Cedar, Okla., to cut the ribbon on a new scenic highway across the Kiamichi Mountains.

As the President finished his speech, he threw in a few highly complimentary remarks about Albert, his former colleague in the House. Albert in deadpan seriousness, calmly stage-whispered:

"Don't forget to cut the ribbon."

THERE'S A NEW STORY going around the Pentagon that Vice Admiral Hyman Rickover, who copyrights his speeches, sends two copies of every address he makes to the Library of Congress before submitting it to Department of Defense censors.

Then he delivers the censored version. If friends complain that the speech was weak or timid, Rickover simply tells them to check his copy in the Library of Congress to find out what he really wanted to say.

WHEN TOLD THAT a columnist had written, "No one grubs around the pork barrel more than Sen. Bob Kerr, the Oklahoma oil man, who would like to transfer everything but the Washington monument to his home state," Kerr snuffed: "My only complaint is that he understates my intentions. What more beautiful surroundings could possibly be imagined for that famous landmark than our fair state of Oklahoma?"

SECRETARY OF THE Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr., former president of West Virginia University, was embarrassed when one of his speeches was censored on a point of semantics. Stahr had written, "The Soviet Union has for many years deprived its citizens of the necessities of life."

Kennedy and Stockpiling: What Needs to Be Told

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's instinctive passion for publicity and headlines got the better of him at his press conference this week as he chose the wrong method to achieve a rightful objective.

Instead of presenting to Congress in a comprehensive message the full details of the "stockpiling" program with specific recommendations to curtail excessive purchasing, Mr. Kennedy made a vague statement and left the inference of scandal as he referred to "unconscionable profit." It so happens that, at the "unconscionable" tax rates of today, the Federal government gets back 52 per cent of all corporate profits and from 75 to 90 per cent of the income of any individual "profiters."

Congress is primarily responsible for this program of spending, and the Democratic party has been in control of both houses for seven out of the last nine years. Mr. Kennedy himself was a member of the Senate during six of the last nine years. Again and again Senators Willis Robertson and Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Democrats, have called attention in formal reports to the large expenditures in recent years for stockpiling of both metals and agricultural products, but to no avail.

Trying for 5 Years

Sen. Robertson in a public statement issued points out that his committee had been trying for the past five years to get this stockpile cut down but that "Congress up to now has declined to follow the committee's advice." He adds: "On the contrary, it has never amended the original legislation which prevents the President from disposing of stockpiled materials, surplus to the nation's needs, without specific legislative approval."

Mr. Robertson is chairman of a joint committee on defense production, and Mr. Byrd is chairman of a joint committee on reduction of non-essential Federal expenditures. Both committees were bypassed by the President as he asked Sen. Stuart Symington, chairman of the stockpile subcommittee of the armed services committee, to undertake the investigation. Mr. Symington was invited to the White House to discuss the problem and subsequently told reporters that he knows of "no wrongdoing by anyone."

An investigation. For what the Federal government has been doing in the purchase of metals and other commodities, has served to bolster the prices of those same articles, and this, in turn, has meant profits for the sellers. This also has been true, of course, in the agricultural domain.

Farm Stockpiling

As a matter of fact, it looks very much as if the President is trying to build up an alibi for the excessive stockpiling of farm products. For he made his charges about the supplies in metals on the very same day

There's more than meets the eye that he asked Congress in a special message for power to deal with the farm program by price supports.

Actually, the United States has stockpiled about $7.7 billion in war materials, but its agricultural stockpile is at about the same figure, though the President says it is lower. For the Congress has taken into account the exchange of farm products for metals, which is one of the jobs the defense production agency carries on. This amounts to a sizeable figure.

Back of the big sums involved in stockpiling is a market factor. Through the buying of these materials, the surpluses are taken off the market, and this sends the prices up to artificial levels. Naturally, the sellers make large profits, and that's what happens to those who deal in farm products, too. The whole idea is to bolster prices.

Farm Prices, Too

So, if there is anything "unconscionable," it is in the way the Congress has held prices of farm products, as well as metals, above what the law of supply and demand would normally make them.

Mr. Kennedy's statement to his press conference could adversely affect metal markets. His statement of reassurance may be discounted. He said:

"I am very much aware of the intricate and interrelated problems involved in this area, including the difficulties experienced by certain domestic mineral industries, the impact on world markets, and the heavy reliance of certain countries on producing one or more of these minerals. And I can say that we will take no action which will disrupt commodity prices."

Reason for It

The whole stockpiling program has been based on the concept of a three to five-year war. The process of accumulating scarce materials was stepped up in the Korean war, which lasted three years. In any economic struggle, the Soviet Union can do heavy damage by getting control of certain strategic areas in the world, especially those in Africa where scarce metals are found.

For the United States to have built up too big a surplus may have been wrong, but until the President defines the kind of war the Department of Defense is planning for—a short or a long war, a nuclear or a limited war—it will not be possible to make a sound judgment as to how big the stockpile really should be.

The President owes it to the country to take the innuendo out of the controversy and to explain the true situation fully to Congress and the country so that, if there has been any improper lobbying in and around both houses in the last sixteen years, since World War II ended, the country will get the facts irrespective of which political party may be damaged by the expose. For it is obvious that the stockpiling and financing have been very largely on the authorization of Congress. The investigation is long overdue. (Reproduction rights reserved)

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

A high school girl in Redding, Conn., has pulled the nails out of the rickety edifice of one of our compulsory hypocrisies. As editor of her school paper, she wrote that patriotism is not a "reasonable, or enforceable emotion. She thus demolished an ideal and ideals are pitiful in death, the worse at the hands of a child who should lower her lids and droop her tresses in a posture of sorrow, snickering behind her fingers.

This little girl would have looked better against a myth worthy of her steel. The Magna Charta for example; drawn and quartered in the various Federal courts.

But patriotism is generally defined as Love of Country and thus is robbed of its virtue before its defenders can buckle on the stuff and ride to its defense. To limit the word "country" or patria to any geographical patch, even with colonies and satellites, is to bespeak affection for 125th Street and Park Ave., New York; Saratoga Springs; the dismal red brick rows of Boston; swayback frame tenements and cottages in the textile valleys of New England; Braddock, Pa.; Lens in France; Bloomsbury in London; and, as the child well knows who inspired all this, Redding, Conn.

It is self-defeating to argue that patriotism means a love of one's compatriots. All human experience this side of idiocy cries out that humanity is selective and fickle in love whether wholesale or particular. Hatred is so popular among Americans that hateful societies are constantly on the moor for donations to finance counter-aggressions against primary hate-mongers. Americans are more versatile than most others in detestation of our fellow-men but there is a charming quirk in the fact that the national propaganda bitingly defends the most hated and with equal loathing damns the stout minority who will not deny their hatred of those who have earned it. We formally subsidize hatred by tax-exemption for income given to rackets which foist it as benevolent education.

We are given to a warm affection for the French of both genders and all political sections. This never had a sensible base but when the marvelous German armies of 1914 marched through Belgium into Flanders, the American people went into frenzies of sorrow for France and hatred of the Heines.

We honor efficiency but hated the German for excelling the French who had founded their whole nation and society on their skill in war. We had no French neighbors among us and hardly one in a thousand Americans ever had set foot on French soil. On the contrary, there were enormous clots of good, substantial Germans and their get in Chicago, Milwaukee and New York who certainly deserved neighborly respect and a polite hearing.

We had long ago adopted the wholehearted, sentimental German song "O Tannenbaum," as the anthem of our own Maryland and a secondary Christmas hymn. The anthem of the French, on the contrary, was the war cry of a savage mob and the essence of political Communism. But we shrilled the "Marseillaise" with brine on our cheeks and by July, 1916, who-soever asked the beer garden band to play "Ach du lieber Augustin" was a damned dirty Boche.

Ever since 1861, the people of the Southern Tier have been victims of hatred organized by Northern people with the savage approval of the U. S. Congress during the worst of an infamous ordeal. That ordeal is now endorsed by the Supreme Court in obedience to the hot-blood civil rights amendments adopted while the South lay under the iron heel. After cold-war relations were established, the North went into a long sulk because Yankee swine, finding themselves in Mobile with sample-trunks of beads and bustles, were not bidden to hot-bread and honey in the homes of the Finest Families. This aloofness was only a wary policy of children of those who had lived in slavery in puppet-states under satrapage from Washington. The Governments of Poland and the Baltics are reasonable facsimiles for which Moscow may claim our precedent.

After a long time the South forgave all and the North responded with another aggression against the most genteel civilization in American history through the medium of anonymous blasts of hatred on the radio and in mazzette controlled this.

The Supreme Court endorsed this on the counsel of a foreign intervenor, one Myrdal, whose word became by Warren's ukase, the law of the land.

What then is patriotism which the little girl in Redding found inferior to her own perceptions? It is, unfortunately, a beautiful mockery. It has inspired millions of Americans as well as Montenegris with only rags for shoes, to kill impersonal enemies out of hatred for evil chiefs. A good enemy is inconceivable though the concept of right and wrong requires both.

American patriotism instinctively is Niagara Falls blatant they are inferior to less blatant cataracts. It is the Chicago stockyards, the French Quarter of New Orleans and the memory of Babe Ruth. It is the Democratic Party but not Tom Pendergast, and the Republican Party but never President Harding.

This leaves us then reduced to statutory faith and allegiance. It is little to warm our hearts and our bones but then there is hatred too, for fuel. And that, Little Girl from Redding, will fire the blood of your children to kill gloriously Pro Patria. (Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

5 More Federal Suits Filed for High Price-Fixing

NEW YORK (AP)—Five more Federal Court damage suits were filed Thursday against electrical manufacturers, convicted of overpricing their products.

None of the suits specified the extent of loss, but each asked triple damages.

The New York State Electric and Gas Corp. named 16 electrical firms as defendants. Seven of the same defendants were named in a suit by the Rochester Gas and Electric Corp., and four of them in a third suit by the Patchogue Electric Corp.

More than 200 suits have been filed in the country in the past year, after the electrical manufacturers were convicted of violating anti-trust laws by price fixing. The alleged overpricing involved the sale of such items as lightning arresters, turbine generators, distribution transformers, circuit breakers and power-switch equipment.

Among those named as defendants by the Rochester Gas and Electric Corp. were General Electric, Allis - Chalmers, Westinghouse, McGraw-Edison and Mo-noly Electric Co.

Other filing suits included the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp.

There were seven enlistments here in the Regular Army during January, it has been reported by SFC Edward Malenski at the U. S. Army Recruiting Station in the municipal auditorium, 467 Broadway.

They are:

Roger A. May, Box 154, Glen-ford, who enlisted for a career in food service.

John K. Tomasek, 51 New-kirk Avenue, who enlisted for a career in administration.

Alec M. Albertini of Wind-ham will be assigned a career by Department of the Army.

Roscoe H. Playford, 530 First Avenue, will be assigned a career by Department of the Army.

Erich Schaedle, Lake Mohonk, who enlisted for direct assign-ment to U. S. Army Europe.

Allen Colonna, Malden-on-Hudson, who enlisted for a career in electronics.

Carlson D. Coddington, Shiver-ton Road, New Paltz, will be assigned a career by De-partment of the Army.

Here is another hand to il-lustrate the difference between rubber bridge and match point technique.

A winning rubber bridge player will note that there is an absolutely sure thing play for his contract.

He will win the first spade in his own hand, take his three high diamonds, lead the five of hearts and go up with dummy's king.

This line of play will guar-antee him four diamonds, three spades, one heart, and the ace of clubs.

Some duplicate players would do the same, but most of them would make some try for an overtrick or two, whereupon they would surely wind up with-out their contracts.

The logical way to go after overtricks is to win the first spade in dummy and promptly take a club finesse. If the club finesse works and the suit breaks, declarer will make at least 10 tricks and may wind up with 11.

Unfortunately for this line of attack, the club finesse loses and the suit does not break. West will take his king of clubs and lead a second spade whereupon some declarers will find a way to go down two tricks. This is not too hard. All they have to do is to lay down the ace of clubs whereupon East and West will be able to make three clubs, two hearts and a spade.

Lawrence Views Great Progress on Penn. Shortway

DUBOIS, Pa. (AP)—Gov. Lawrence predicts accelerated progress on construction of the Key-stone Shortway across northern Pennsylvania during the next two years.

The governor told a meeting of the DuBois Area Service Clubs Thursday. "We will be able to commit $126 million to the con-struction of the Keystone Short-way within the next two years—a series of contracts which will advance this crucially important new highway far beyond our original anticipation."

The contracts, he said, will in-clude the largest single section, a $29 million stretch between Du-Bois and Dale.

He said his administration's ap-proach to the Shortway is to give aid where it is most needed.

"It is imperative that the prob-lems of highway building be tackled in this manner," he said, "just as it is necessary to pay for construction as we proceed."

• Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The televi-sion industry believes that it takes the audience from September, when its new season starts, to mid-January to shake down to any real viewing habits and valid ex-pressions of likes or dislikes for the wares displayed.

Therefore, networks, sponsors and performers are paying close attention to the early January popularity ratings reported this week by the polling organization the industry considers most au-thoritative, Nielsen.

It is noteworthy, perhaps, that among Nielsen's 20 most popular programs on the networks, only three were new this year: "Dr. Kildare" and "Hazel" on NBC, and "The Defenders" on CBS.

They are listed in sixth, sev-enth and ninth places. But right on top, win, place and show, are those perennial favorites, "Wagon Train," "Gunsmoke" and "Perry Mason."

Meanwhile, network program-mers are deep in plans for next season's delights.

Trend-spotters, who apparently work like racetrack handicappers, figure that next season will be the year of the war programs. A number of producers have stirring, patriotic sagas of World War II in the blueprint stage.

There's a chance CBS' GE The-atre may expand to an hour and move to NBC next season. "Hen-nessey" is on the losing end of a ratings fight with "Ben Casey," with the latter Irishman most likely to be around next season.

NBC's "Cain's Hundred" this week was pretty strong stuff—full of rabble-rousers, hate-groups, a sexual assault on a girl who goes mad—and was shown on the evening of a day when the network brass were putting their best statements forward at the Federal Communications Commission hearing.

Recommended weekend view-ing:

Tonight—Telephone Hour, NBC, 9:30 - 10:30 (Eastern Standard Time)—Opera star Joan Suther-land, Polly Bergen and Janet Blair, guest artists.

Sunday—Special report on FCC hearings on TV, NBC, 6:30-7 p.m.; Stan Freberg comedy special, ABC, 6:30-7:30; "The Forger," NBC, 10-11—drama based on the post-war trial of artist Hans Van Meegeren whose imitations of Vermeer's paintings fooled the ex-perts.

Doctors to Hold Discussion About Medicare for Aged

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—The first special emergency meeting of the 155-year-old House of Dele-gates of the New York State Medical Society has been sched-uled for next week in New York to discuss possible changes in present legislation of medical care for the aged.

"We do want to liberalize" existing federal support legisla-tion for old-age medical benefits, Dr. Henry Feinberg of New York, executive vice president of the so-ciety, was quoted by the Roche-ster Times-Union as saying.

The newspaper suggested that paid medical equipment, such as eye-glasses and devices for cri-pled persons, might be among the things urged at the meeting.

Federal funds have been avail-able to the state since 1960 to help pay medical expenses of eld-erly persons who do not receive old-age assistance and can't meet their medical costs.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Government policies of stockpiling materials that might be needed in an emergency have played a sizable and varied role in private business since World War II.

At all times the stockpiling has afforded an increased market for a large number of commodities. Occasionally the stockpile has been tapped—or acquisitions sus-pended—to ease a critical short-age in civilian industry. Some-times government buying has frankly been used to maintain production when lack of civilian demand for one or more items would otherwise have caused a shutdown and unemployment.

• Upsetting at Times
Changes in stockpiling policies—or rumors of impending changes—have at times upset commodity markets and affected prices of stocks of particular companies in-volved, either as producer or user. The stockpile includes metals, rubber, opium, diamond dies, sperm oil, castor oil, feathers, quinine, talc—to name but a few. The stockpile's role in private industry could be stepped up sharply as the result of President Kennedy's ordering of an inquiry into its size and procurement practices.

Some domestic producers would be affected if Congress orders a halt to further stockpiling. Over-seas suppliers doubtless would complain loudly. U.S. government contracts are still in force to buy many materials which the Pres-ident says the stockpile already has to excess. Some contracts run to 1965.

• Careful of Prices
If supplies the President calls excessive are put on the market, price disruption is a real threat—although the President promises "We will take no action which will disrupt commodity prices." Red-ucing the stockpile without af-fecting markets and prices will be a neat trick for the Admin-istration and Congress to consider.

The President puts the present value of the stockpile at $7.7 bil-lion. Experts say that is stated in present prices for the commodities stored, but the actual outlay was probably a billion more, since in many cases commodity prices are below their peaks.

What we really need for an emergency would have a value of about $4.3 billion, according to the President. Cutting away the $3.4 billion he calls excessive, and get-ting out of contracts to buy still more, is the big threat to private business, and the President recog-nizes it as such.

The original goal after World War II was to build up a stockpile of some 76 items labeled strategic or critical in times of war or other crisis. One such crisis loomed for a time when the Soviet Union cut off sale of magnesium we needed —we now get it elsewhere.

• Short on Some
In addition to the 76 items, in which goals have been met on all but 13, stockpilers have bought 22 other materials without specified goals.

The President says we are still critically short in three items he declined to name. But the stock-pilers are reported still buying jewel bearings for precision in-struments, small-sized diamond dies to draw out fine copper wires for circuit components in missiles and spacecraft, and amosite as-bestos used in special insulation by the Navy.

WELCOMING GIFT FOR EMPLOYER'S RETURN

Q: My employer to whom I have been secretary for about two years, is undergoing surgery in another state. I would like to know if it would be appropriate for me to present him with a welcome back gift of perhaps a pen, book ends, etc., (which I know he would have use for in his office) rather than send him flowers or a book. I don't know what type of book he would enjoy reading but I'm sure he will be getting such items from friends, of which he has many. I would very much appreciate your advice regarding this matter.

A: Your idea of a welcoming back gift instead of flowers is excellent, but choose "something that is inexpensive or it might be embarrassing for him to receive it from an employee."

Q: The daughter of a neighbor of ours was married recently and my husband and I were invited to the wedding and reception. The wedding was in the morning and a reception followed at a private club. The bride and groom were seated at a long table and was served a very elaborate collation while the rest of the wedding guests were served sandwiches and something to drink. Wasn't this in bad taste?

A: At a stand-up wedding breakfast it is customary to have a table at which the bride party is seated, but they should not have been served anything more elaborate than that which was served to the wedding guests.

Q: Will you please tell me the correct way to introduce a Protestant clergyman? Should he be introduced as Mr. John Smith or The Rev. John Smith?

A: You address a letter to him as The Rev. John Smith but you introduce him as Mr. Smith or Dr. Smith if he is a D.D.

For information concerning the clothes of the bride and groom's parents as well as those of the wedding guests, send for the new Emily Post Institute booklet entitled "Correct Clothes for a Wedding Reception." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Emily Post Institute, care of The Freeman.

DINE AT HOME—ITALIAN STYLE

Too often we think of Italy's food being limited to recipes based on oil, tomatoes and garlic. These dishes, hearty and delicious, reflect the southern Italian cuisine and have been popularized by the Italo-American restaurants. However, this familiar fare tends to give us a false impression of Italian cuisine which actually varies from the delicate, subtle dishes of the north, to the spicy aromatic dishes of the south.

Much of Italy's bounty is shared by us — her macaronis, rice, cornmeal, wines, olive oils, canned tomato products, cheeses, chestnuts, pistachios, anchovies, white truffles, confections, pastries and preserves. These are all available in local supermarkets, at gourmet shops in department stores, and through grocers specializing in imported Italian food products.

In the average home, the choice of the first course is soup, macaroni or rice. The antipasto is frequently omitted — reserved chiefly for holiday or festive occasions. A good Florentine, for example, (central portion of the country) enjoys his soup far more than any pasta (macaroni) dish; the Milanese (north) likes his risotto; the Venetian loves his dish of polenta (cornmeal). But from Rome southward, a meal is not a meal if it doesn't include a good hearty dish of pasta.

It is unheard of to serve minestrone (or any kind of soup) AND a pasta dish at the same meal. Pasta, on the other hand, is practically never served for a main course as we know it — a substitute for meat or fish. And, although bread is served with every meal, it is never eaten with a pasta, risotto or a polenta dish.

Contrary to popular belief, spaghetti dishes are not the "staff of life" in Italy; risotto and polenta are favored in the northern provinces where saffron is added to the rice to make it the bright yellow color they prefer. The tomato-loving south makes liberal use of the tomato sauce and the central regions compromise with a meat sauce. All top it with grated Parmesan cheese.

Also contrary to popular belief, not all sauces are heavy in oil or include tomato. For instance, there is the "white" or clam sauce of Naples; the "green" sauce made with basil, garlic, cheese and oil of Genoa called "pesto." Then many Italians prefer a meatless sauce consisting of butter and Parmesan — al burro e parmigiano. There are, of course, many sauces in which tomato is one of several ingredients, such as Sauce Bolognese, made with chopped vegetables and meat; a Roman style — onion and bacon sauce; and the Calabrian style fresh cheese and sausage combination.

The main course consists of meat or fish accompanied by vegetables and sometimes a salad.

Italian beverages — most typical, of course, are their world famous wines. For the most part, Italians avoid strong liquor. In place of the American cocktail they prefer vermouth with a dash of bitters and a piece of lemon peel. This drink is often served diluted with seltzer.

Last comes the cheese and fruit course, or dessert. Dessert wines are also frequently served.

Perhaps you can't go to Italy with your family this year. But there's no reason why you can't "Tour Italy at Your Table," right now with this basic background information and the aid of a good Italian cookbook.

Buon viaggio e buon appetito!

RPI Receives $60,000 Grant

TROY—Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute has been given a grant of $60,000 by the Ford Foundation to be used to aid doctoral engineering students preparing to be engineering teachers.

The program is designed to bring into teaching graduates who, usually because of family responsibilities, require more support in advanced training than conventional fellowships or their personal resources can provide.

Qualified students who commit themselves to teaching careers will be eligible for loans of up to a total of $10,000 over a three-year period. After students complete their doctorates, the loans will be forgiven at a fixed rate—$1,000 or 20 per cent of the total owed at the termination of graduate study, whichever is greater—for every year of service on an American or Canadian engineering faculty.

The loan recipients are to be selected by Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. No student over 40 years of age will be eligible.

Three other institutions in New York State have been selected by the Ford Foundation to participate in this new program. Grants to these were awarded as follows: $75,000, Columbia University; $50,000, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute; and $25,000, New York University.

The Mature Parent

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

The World's Impatient Hold Others in Contempt

One day when Mrs. P. was seven years old she had a temper tantrum.

Partly she had it because her mother had angered her by refusing to let her wear her new Sunday dress to school. Partly she had it because she was fairly sure it would work. And work it did. Though her mother had stated her wish that the dress be reserved for special occasions, Mrs. P. figured that she would relinquish it as soon as she was sufficiently frightened. Accordingly, she frightened her mother. Ripping off her school blouse, she tore it, yelled, "I hate it! I hate it! It's old and ugly!"—and started to scream at the top of her voice.

She got what she wanted. But as the permission was granted her, her triumph was mixed with thoughts that suddenly shaped into conviction in Mrs. P.'s mind. She thought:

"People are fools. Their wishes are so flimsily held that they deserve no respect. MY wishes are the only ones I can trust." However, as it is difficult for a child to live with a parent whom he knowingly regards as a fool, Mrs. P. soon forgot that conviction forged in the heat of intense experience—and grew up believing that she felt deep admiration for mama's "gentleness."

But we don't easily rid ourselves of such deeply felt conviction. So, today Mrs. P. is a stickler for "instant obedience" from her children. This afternoon when Eddie delays going on an errand to work on the broken strap of a roller skate, she will become very angry. She will jerk the skate from him, crying, "Didn't you hear me tell you to go to the store? What are you dawdling over this for?"

Parents who are infuriated by children's dawdling are often victims of a childhood conviction like Mrs. P.'s.

They are literally unable to consider the idea that Eddie's wish to repair his skate is as important to him as their wish for his service is to them.

Their old contempt for other people's wishes is always exposed by their angry response to children's dawdling. Usually, they imagine that the dawdling is a special experience. This is not the truth. They can tolerate no delay in anything they want. They are the people who fuss at traffic lights which won't change.

who become impatient in queues waiting at ticket offices and whose husbands must have the car around at the side door as soon as they're ready to get in it.

Why other people's wishes should always strike them as unimportant and contemptible they usually prefer not to ask. One can understand this. It means going back to revise that opinion of mama's "gentleness." It means remembering the contempt they felt for her weakness.

Colorful Revue Opens on Broadway; New Personalities

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP)—Youth has a swanky, smart fling in "New Faces of 1962."

The revue, featuring 18 rookie singers, dancers and comics, opened Thursday night at the Alvin Theater amid lavish trappings. There are stunning costumes; gay, imaginative settings, and lots of girly glamor.

With so many good things around to watch, however, one cannot completely overlook a lack of equal riches to hear. The song and sketch material supplied by 12 authors is up-and-down all the way.

The performing talent, rounded up by Leonard Sillman from far and near, is uniformly attractive. Not every individual gets equal opportunity to show his or her stuff.

Among the male standouts are Joey Carter, a rakish and round folk singer from Philadelphia; a highly amusing R. G. Brown, who hails from Flint, Mich.; and dancers Jim Corbett, of Monroe, La., and Juan Carlos Copes, of Argentina.

The comely distaff array includes Mickey Wayland, of Knoxville, Tenn., in song and sketch; Helen Kardon, of Merion, Pa., who vocalizes with touching charm; and Marian Mercer, of Akron, Ohio, a tousle-haired comedienne. Maria Nieves does some exciting dances of her native Argentina; and Patti Karr, from St. Paul, Minn., is called on for a strenuous sequence of toros gymnastics.

The most unusual singing voice is that of Sylvia Lord, an ex-tycoon from the Caribbean Island of St. Lucia. A sinuous style and built-in vibrato are matched with exotic beauty as Miss Lord enhances several rather pedestrian romantic ballads.

Producers Carroll and Harris Masterson quite obviously have given designer Marvin Reiss and costume designer Thomas Becher plenty of cash leeway in setting the display of young talent in a smart showcase.

"New Faces of 1962" can pleasantly beguile the spectator who remembers the first law of theatrical revues: Every number can't be a smasher.

Troop 34 Works February 9 Date At Boiceville

For the past six weeks Boy Scout Troop 34 of Woodstock has been making greater strides in an effort to get their advancement in, so that they may be recognized for their rank advancement during Scout week Court of Recognition.

In the past three weeks, the troop has had a board of review at which five boys were advanced. The troop gained one life scout, two star scouts and two first class scouts. Since Troop 34 has four members in the Ontario Chapter of Order of the Arrow, they know that the Court of Recognition will be a change from preceding years.

However, since the O.A. members will not reveal any details, the scouts will have to be present at the Court of Recognition and all plan to be there with their parents.

Order of the Arrow

For the past year scouting has been advancing in the Western District of Rip Van Winkle Council. It has been a tradition to hold a court of Recognition for the purposes of recognizing all boys in Cubbing and Scouting who have advanced a rank in the past year. In Scouting we also have an organization which is made up of Scouts and Scouters who have been elected by their fellow Scouts called "The Order of the Arrow."

The Order of the Arrow is a group who have a deep interest in Scouting and try to preserve as much as possible the ways of the Indian, and try to render cheerful service to all others and further the aims of scouting.

In Indian Costume: The Ontario Chapter of Half Moon Lodge 28 will be in Indian costume this year and will recognize each scout in cubbing and scouting who has made any rank advancement in the past year and the public is invited to this Court of Recognition.

Refreshments will be on sale for the benefit of the new dining hall which is being erected at Camp Tri-Mount. All proceeds will be turned over to the dining hall fund.

The Court of Recognition will be held on Friday, Feb. 9, at 7 p. m. at the Ontario Central school auditorium in Boiceville.

Kingston Superintendent Lauded by State Educators

The superintendent of the Kingston City Schools, Dr. Earl F. Soper, was cited for his outstanding educational leadership by Louis M. Klein, superintendent of Harrison and president of the New York State Council of City and Village School Superintendents at a joint convention of Chief School Administrators held at Grossinger's Thursday afternoon.

"I wish to express my deep appreciation to Dr. Earl F. Soper for the magnificent job he has done as chairman of the very important Legislative Committee of our organization," President Klein told some 250 superintendents assembled at a business meeting of the State's City and Village chief school administrators.

"He has been unusually conversant, dependable, alert and dynamic in fulfilling to the letter all of the heavy responsibilities of that position. We commend him and express our deep gratitude for his outstanding leadership and zeal in striving for better educational legislation."

For School Legislation

Dr. Soper has been very active as chairman of the Legislative Committee since his appointment to that post by President Klein and has recently represented the City and Village Superintendents at the Diebold Committee hearing at Albany. Prior to that, he met with Howard Gould, executive secretary of the New York State Teachers Association, and James E. Allen, commissioner of education for the State of New York, to work for better educational legislation.

About 750 superintendents and school district administrators and central school principals attended the three-day meeting at Grossinger's. The convention ended this morning.

Changes Are Needed

Associate superintendent Franklin H. Hazard accompanied Dr. Soper to the convention where they heard several outstanding educational leaders cite the need for changes in public schools today.

Dr. Robert Anderson of Harvard in a discussion of team teaching and ungraded classes, said that the new forms of class organization were necessary to focus attention on the needs of each child and to increase flexibility and efficiency in the use of educational resources.

Must Evaluate Carefully

Ways are needed, said Dr. Chase, to introduce into schools new theories of knowledge and of learning to increase the quality and quantity of what was learned by students at all levels of ability.

Dr. Jacobs warned that change must be based on careful evaluation of what was to be taught and how not merely undertaken for the sake of change.

In speaking of team teaching, Dr. Jacobs said, "If you take five stupid people and put them on a team, all you have is a team of five stupid people."

Team teaching involves several teachers, usually with strength in different subject areas who work together with a leader in planning and instructing a class of children arranged in a variety of groupings. In non-graded classes children are permitted to progress at their own ability level, which may vary in different subjects.

Chaperone Nixes Miss America Kiss

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—Miss American and Vancouver's official greeter swayed toward each other for a light buss on the cheek at the airport. It didn't come off. "Here now," snapped chaperone Angela Petesch, "there'll be no kisses."

Blushed Miss America, Maria Beale Fletcher of Asheville, N.C. "It was slightly embarrassing."

"Really disappointing," murmured Alderman Frank Baker.

Grey-haired Miss Petesch remarked that "kissing strangers is not becoming for our Miss America. It's downright ungracious."

Groundhog Don't

regarded as the official weather prophet but the Philadelphia groundhog saw its shadow a week ago. Zoo Keeper Stuart Borden said the animal wasn't trying to be smart or to jump the gun. He explained that it had three skunks as underground roommates and came up for air.

But the premature forecast of the Philadelphia woodchuck was not what irritated Robert Herr, chairman of the Shubert Lodge of Groundhogs' board of governors here and Sam Light, president of the Punksuswatt Groundhog Club in the western part of the state.

What irritated them was an announcement by the National Geographic Society that men of science had reported the groundhog a lazy creature who, if left undisturbed, would sleep right through his biggest day in the warm confines of his earth-lined burrow.

Herr called that libelous. He quoted Dr. David E. Davis of Pennsylvania State University as proving "our hero comes out of hibernation in the first few days of February—always on the second."

Farewell Party Given Tongue by County Workers

Ward B. Tongue, who was recently named by Mayor John J. Schwenk to the position of urban renewal director, was given a farewell party Thursday afternoon by workers at the Ulster County clerk's office. He concluded his duties as deputy county clerk today by attending the February regular special term held by Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth. Tongue will assume his new duties next week.

Mr. Tongue, who has served as deputy county clerk under County Clerk Lawrence E. Craft and prior county clerks, was presented with an attache case by fellow employees.

His new duties under appointment by Mayor Schwenk will be to expedite the final planning stages of the urban renewal program in the downtown section of the city and to instigate an urban renewal project to help solve problems of the uptown area of the city.

No appointment has been made by County Clerk Craft to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Deputy County Clerk Tongue, nor has the Ulster County commissioner of jurors board designated a new commissioner of jurors to succeed Mr. Tongue, who held that part-time position for the past several years.

Board Tied Up, Clerk Given Task Of Naming Leader

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—The selection of a chairman of the Oneida County board of supervisors was the task today of County Clerk Robert R. Senior, after the board failed in 93 ballots to break a deadlock.

The board was required by law to name a chairman before midnight Thursday.

There was some indication that Senior would appoint Gilbert D. Pierce, supervisor of the Town of Bridgewater. He was the county Republican organization's candidate.

Harold V. Kirch of Camden, leader of the old guard Republicans on the board, was chairman until last Dec. 31. He had been at odds with the regular county GOP organization.

The board is comprised of 30 Republicans and 20 Democrats. Twenty-six votes were needed for election to the two-year post.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A 19-year-old widow must spend at least three years in prison for her part in the beating-death of a 75-year-old woman.

Judge Theodore L. Reimel imposed an indefinite sentence Thursday in the Muncy, Pa., state correctional institution for women for Mrs. Evelyn Labarr.

The judge recommended she serve not less than three years or more than 10 years. The victim was Mrs. Sarah Maxin.

George Shead, 16, and Gerald Carpenter, 15, accomplices of Mrs. Labarr, were given similar sentences. They will serve their time in the Eastern State Correctional Institution here.

Mrs. Labarr and Shead pleaded guilty to general charges of murder last Thursday and were adjudged guilty in the second degree. Carpenter entered a similar plea yesterday.

Mrs. Maxin died last February. At the time she was Mrs. Labarr's landlady. The girl and the two boys were accused of beating the woman so severely in a $300 robbery that she died of a ruptured liver.

The three fled to East Rochester, N.Y., where they were captured.

Mrs. Labarr's late husband was from East Rochester.

Plumbing . . . all buildings, both public and private, in each of the cities of this state, shall be performed by persons authorized under the rules and regulations adopted by the local board of plumbing examiners, in conjunction with the board of health for plumbing and drainage work shall be executed in compliance with such rules and regulations.

The Board of Education of the Kingston City Schools, Consolidated, was notified of Kelly's stand in the matter at its February meeting Thursday night by Singer, Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of schools read an excerpt from an opinion by John J. J. Soper, attorney for the New York State Education Department in which he said that local building codes do not apply to construction in school districts.

This opinion was concurred in by Andrew J. Cook Jr., school board attorney, according to Dr. Soper, who said Cook was of the opinion that the only time a city-licensed plumber would be required is at the time the school sewer and water pipes are connected with the City of Kingston water and sewer systems.

In reply to this, Kelly said that as far as he is concerned under the present circumstances there will be no sewer or water connections made at the Mary's Avenue School. He commented: "When I took my oath as plumbing inspector I swore to enforce the plumbing code of Kingston for the health and protection of its citizens and I will continue to enforce it until required by law to do otherwise. I will not have it on my conscience to permit plumbing work to be done by unlicensed workmen. It is my duty to bring these very important facts to the board of examiners, the Plumbers Local and to the public."

Driver Injured In One of Three Traffic Mishaps

A driver was injured in a mishap at O'Neil Street and Tremper Avenue Thursday afternoon and three cars were involved in another this morning downtown.

John J. Lane, 23, of 189 Tremper Avenue driving a Mosher's Delivery Service pickup truck, head and shoulder injuries after the two-car collision yesterday.

The other car, police said, headed east on O'Neil Street, was driven by Albert Blakely Jr., 41, of Box 252, Stone Ridge. The truck was headed north on Tremper Avenue. Lane was to be treated by a doctor. Officer Edward Edwards investigated.

Drivers of the three cars in the other mishap at McEntee and Adams streets, said to be caused by skidding were Ralph B. Hayner, 60, Robert Street, Town of Ulster, Paul Schwark, 64, of Salem Street Port Ewen, and Raymond Port, 60, of 136 Broadway.

Police said the car driven by Hayner, headed west on McEntee Street, skidded on ice, struck the car driven by Schwark which was turning left into a traffic lane, and that hit the other car which was waiting for Schwark to merge into traffic. Officers Richard Scherer and Joseph Kivlan investigated.

31-Year Marriage Nears End

Mrs. Rockefeller in Reno For Quick, Quiet Finale

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller has arrived in this divorce capital—apparently to end her 31-year marriage to New York's governor in a quick and quiet way.

They separated in New York several months ago.

No Confirmation

Mrs. Rockefeller's attorney, William K. Woodburn of Reno, would not confirm that she came to Nevada for a divorce. "She's here in Reno—period," he said after her arrival Thursday night.

Woodburn, a former Democratic national committeeman, has handled many divorce cases but is not generally known as a divorce specialist.

Six weeks' residence in Nevada is required for filing suit for divorce, which may be granted by a county judge on many grounds.

Adultery is the only ground for divorce in New York state, and many New Yorkers establish residence in other states to obtain divorces on different grounds.

Rocky in Iowa

Rockefeller is in Des Moines, Iowa, where he attended a Republican dinner Thursday night, and was not immediately available for comment on his wife's move.

Mrs. Rockefeller was accompanied by her widowed sister, Mrs. Philip Wallis of Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., a fashionable suburb of Philadelphia. Mrs. Rockefeller flew from New York to San Francisco. Woodburn met her at San Francisco and drove her on a 300-mile trip here because fog made air travel impossible.

Neither Rockefeller, 53, nor his wife, 54, has given any public hint of the cause of the breakup of their marriage. They had five children and eight grandchildren.

Amicable Separation

Their separation—described as amicable—was announced by a family spokesman last Nov. 17. Two days later they were struck by tragedy. Their youngest son, Michael, 23, was reported missing in the wilds of Dutch New Guinea. A vast search was conducted, but the young explorer finally was given up as lost. He had dived into crocodile-infested water from a disabled native boat off the shore while on an expedition hunting primitive art.

There was widespread speculation that the parents' grief might lead to a reconciliation. But neither ever said a word to bolster such hope.

Various opinions have been expressed in Republican and Democratic ranks on the possible effect of a divorce on Rockefeller's political future. He will run for a second four-year term as governor next fall, and is a possibility for the Republican nomination for president in 1964.

The Rockefellers already were living apart when the separation and divorce plans were announced.

Heir to Rail Fortune

Mrs. Rockefeller, the former Mary Todhunter Clark of Philadelphia, is heir to a railroad fortune. Her maternal grandfather was George Roberts, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad for many years.

Her personal wealth, however, ranks far below the millions that have come to her husband from the vast fortune started by his grandfather, oil king John D. Rockefeller.

The separation announcement said a property settlement had been reached. The terms were not disclosed.

Suggestions Are Given on How to Cut Tax Mistakes

NEW YORK (AP)—A couple of drinks, an entertaining mystery story—and even the wife—could be a big help when you face up to that pesky chore of figuring your income tax this year.

At least that's some of the advice offered by the Internal Revenue Service to help reduce the mounting number of taxpayers who make simple mistakes in arithmetic on their returns.

"After you make out your form, put it aside, take a rest, go to the movies, or have a couple of drinks," suggested an official of the New York Regional Commissioner's Office of the IRS.

"Then, after a day or two, go back and check the figures. If everyone did this, we could cut the simple arithmetic errors by 75 per cent," he estimated.

"In most cases a taxpayer re-checking his figures immediately after putting them down will make the same error all over again," the revenue man explained.

How does the little woman come in—besides keeping the kids quiet during your aching session with pencil and eraser?

"Well, a wife can also help by checking the figures on the return," the Internal Revenue Service man suggested. "That provides an independent check of the mathematics, and you don't have to show your figures to someone outside the family."

Simple addition and subtraction mistakes are turning up in increasing numbers, the IRS has found. In the year ended June 30, 1961, some 2.5 million taxpayers made errors in arithmetic on their federal returns. That was up 24 per cent from the previous year.

The Critic Was Armed

GUAYMAS, Sonora, Mexico (AP)—Carlos Soto, 20, of Guaymas, Mexico, walked into a restaurant, plunked a nickel into the jukebox, and began a rock 'n' roll routine. A restaurant employee, Rangel Martinez, 18, picked up a pistol and shot Soto in the leg. When questioned by police, Martinez said, "This Soto wasn't dancing the real rock 'n' roll."

9 Milk Drivers For Goshen Firm Face Plate Counts

HERKIMER, N.Y. (AP)—Nine employees of a New York State milk - hauling company face charges that Vermont registration plates used on tank-trucks they drove in this state were not valid for such use.

Each set of plates apparently was purchased for nearly $200 less than the cost of such plates in New York State.

The employees, all drivers for McBride Transport Inc. of Goshen, were arrested at various times on the State Thruway. They have been ordered to appear together Feb. 10 before Peace Justice George Luther in nearby Schuylerville to answer charges of driving unregistered vehicles.

State Police claim the Vermont plates could not be used legally because they were issued to a New York State corporation and used behind tractors registered in this state.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Henry Blumberg of Herkimer County said a New York State registration for such vehicles would cost about $200 a year. He said a similar Vermont registration would cost $4, with an additional $1 fee for permission to use it in other states.

Teenager Denies He Made Bomb Threat

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—A 16-year-old boy pleaded innocent to a charge that he threatened to set off a bomb in his former school.

Louis J. Vertucci of Utica was released in $200 bail after his arraignment in court.

Police said Vertucci, a former pupil at Roscoe Conkling Public School, made five telephone calls to the school Thursday, threatening to bomb it, because he resented an accusation that he made such a threat at the school last year.

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—This country won less than complete victory in Latin America on dealing with Cuba. But there were some solid achievements.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was the U.S. spokesman and general at the Uruguay meeting of 21 American Foreign Ministers, which this country wanted and pushed for.

It showed:
1. Some of the biggest Latin-American nations don't see eye to eye in all details with this country in handling Cuba. Six refused to vote with the United States to expel Fidel Castro from the Organization of American States.

Rushed in Too Fast
2. Judging from that result, this country either rushed into the meeting too fast, without learning beforehand where those six stood, or it did know but optimistically went ahead, ignoring what it had learned.

3. The United States, big as it is and much as Latin America needs its economic help, is not the absolute hemisphere boss. Realization of this here and in Latin America may turn out to have been this country's greatest benefit from the 10-day meeting.

The biggest test of American influence, and the one on which Rusk worked hardest for days, was on the question of throwing Cuba out of the inter-American system.

In the end the United States and 13 other countries — just enough to put the resolution over — voted to do it.

Various Reasons

Cuba, of course, voted against. But Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Ecuador and Mexico refrained from voting. Those six countries contain three-quarters of Latin America's 200 million people.

They didn't want to go along with Rusk for various reasons, ranging from the question of whether this was quite the legal way to go about it to pressure from the left-wing elements among their people back home.

But once that particular issue was out of the way all, with the exception of Cuba, voted: That communism has no place in the inter-American system; to exclude Castro from the inter-American defense board; block arms shipments to and from Cuba, and organize a vigilance system to prevent Cuba from spreading communism in the Americas.

Illustrates Difference

Out of these resolutions other steps will, or should, follow, as Rusk indicated at a news conference he called Thursday, two hours after returning home.

It may be unpalatable to some to see the United States, upon which so many Latin-American nations depend for help, balked if only on one point by those beholden.

Yet it illustrates, as well as anything, the difference between the free association of states in this hemisphere and the Soviet dictatorship which compels compliance from its European satellites.

Before the six Latin-American countries are criticized for being less than 100 per cent agreeable to U.S. wishes, it might be remembered that even such a close ally as French President Charles de Gaulle has been an obstinate and often painful partner.

JFK Satisfied

President Kennedy expressed satisfaction with the outcome. Four members of Congress who accompanied Rusk, two Democrats and two Republicans, called it a "marked success." And Rusk at the West Hurley Fire Hall.

President Peter Weidner will announce his committee appointments for the year at that time and the by-laws committee will introduce for adoption a Constitution and By-laws. All are welcome to attend the meeting and refreshments will be served.

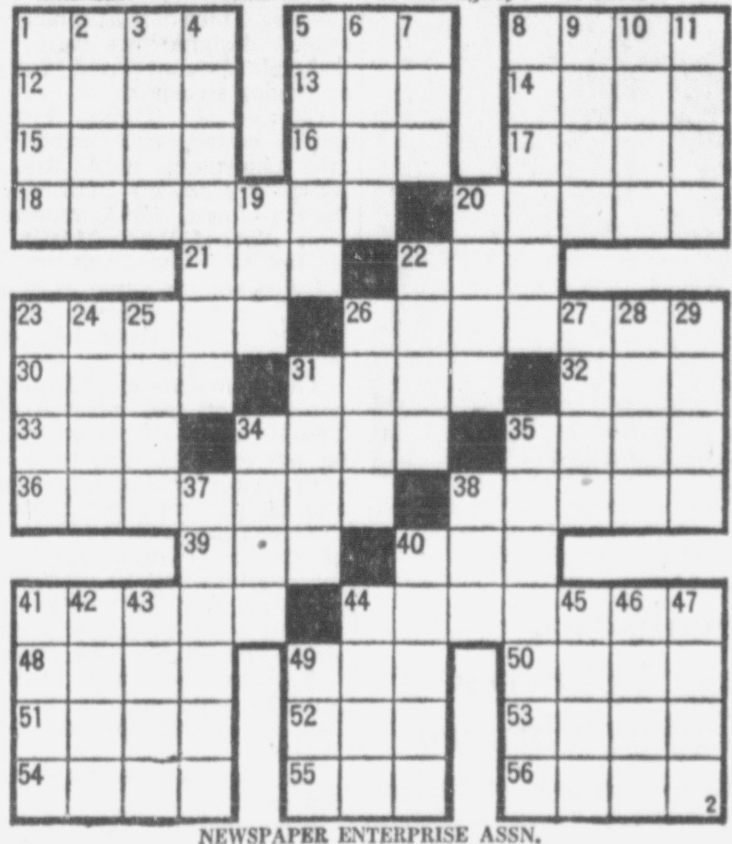

What really counts — now that the resolutions have been adopted — is what the 20 republics do to show they mean something.

Exorbitant Medical Fees Are Subject to Protest

BY FAYE HENLE

If a medical bill staggers you, there is something you can do.

Check with your insurance company, your county medical association, even your doctor, to find out whether there is a "review committee" in your area to which you can appeal.

The form these review committees take varies widely. Generally, they consist of a cross-section of various medical specialists, physicians, surgeons, as well as insurance men and even representatives of large industrial companies. Co-operating with review committees is the Health Insurance Council, an organization of eight insurance trade associations, set up to provide technical and practical aid to doctors and hospitals.

How might you appeal? Suppose you have had your appendix removed and your surgeon bills you for twice the amount you had anticipated, or considerably in excess of the allowance for this operation under your health insurance plan. You should first inquire why the surgeon set that charge.

Perhaps yours was not a simple appendectomy and the ensuing complications, taking additional skill and time on his part, justified the charge.

Perhaps he won't reduce the bill or won't reduce it enough to meet your requirements. You can then turn your case over to such a review committee, giving them complete details.

It is not until after they have rendered their decision that the name of the doctor or patient is revealed and then usually only after you decide not to accept the review committee's first decision and seek further hearings.

Where an insuring company is involved, they will contact the medical man before reviewing your case. Often, it is reported, this contact suffices to reduce your bill.

In not every area, however, can the individual offer his case for review. In some areas, cases can only be submitted through an insuring organization.

No more than a few months old and rapidly being adopted in towns and cities across the country, these medical review committees reflect medicine's keen interest in holding down costs to the consumer wherever possible.

The medical profession's interest is echoed by that of health cost insurers. Together they are aware that three factors have caused medical care to increase in cost by 60 per cent the past dozen years: Responsible for these rising costs are:

Inflation which has pushed up the cost of hospital operation in every respect, including need to compensate for the lagging increase in hospital workers wages.

The forward strides in medicine which not only are successfully prolonging lives, but making faster and more effective cures possible by the use of new drugs and new treatments, often involving the use of new therapy medicines.

Overcharging and waste. It is toward overcharging and waste that the review committee's efforts are directed. However, all involved in reviewing medical care costs urge that you determine as closely as possible the cost of treatment at the onset of an illness or operation.

Hollywood News, Views

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Judy Garland is working in a movie with handicapped children these days.

If her reactions to them display more realism than acting, there's good reason. Children such as these once came to her aid at a time when everyone else seemed to desert her.

At the Top Again

Judy is once again on top of the show world.

She will probably be nominated for an Academy award for her performance in "Judgment at Nuremberg," her first film in seven years. Her two-platter album "Judy at Carnegie Hall" has sold a quarter-million copies. Her concerts are smash here and abroad, and she's doing a TV special.

She is getting back into films in a big way. She is starring with Burt Lancaster in "A Child Is Waiting," then goes directly to England to do a musical, "The Lonely Stage."

When I saw her on the movie set, she was doing a scene in a classroom with retarded children, some of them actually handicapped. She joked and chatted with them all, even engaging in a yo-yo contest with one boy.

Between scenes, she told about her first acquaintance with handicapped children.

"It happened at a time when I was feeling very lonely and sorry for myself," she recalled. "I was sick, and I went to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston for treatment."

At Crucial Period

This was at a crucial period in her career. She had been battling for months with MGM, whose bosses were upset by her overweight and tardiness. The studio finally fired her from "Annie Get Your Gun" and cast Betty Hutton in the role. Judy underwent a breakdown and was sent to the Boston hospital.

"Next door was a children's hospital," she said. "I had no friends to visit me and nothing to do, so I went to visit the children. 'Let me tell you, it was heart-breaking at first. I just wanted to hug them and protect them. But I realized they didn't want protection—they wanted to be accepted.'"

"These children want affection, yes," she said, but most of all they need to be accepted as human beings. They need to feel useful. "I spent a lot of time with the children in the hospital, thinking that I was helping them in some way. You know something? They cured me."

The third annual March of Dimes Bowling Sweepstakes for Kingston Bowling Association keglers will be held the week of Feb. 12-18, campaign director Addison Jones has announced.

The announcement followed a meeting Thursday at which committee designations were made and plans completed for the seven-day sweep.

Charles J. Tiano, Freeman sports editor, was named general chairman, with Mrs. Dot Rawling, women's chairman, and Robert Jones, KBA representative. Mrs. Lillian Martin was elected secretary-treasurer.

Rules are the same as in other years, with bowlers eligible to roll in all of their leagues on payment of the entry fee.

The tournament will be an 80 per cent off 200 scratch affair. The March of Dimes will receive 60 per cent of the total fund, with 30 per cent going to prizes and 10 per cent for expenses.

First prize will be 40 per cent of the total prize fund. Four other prizes will be of 30, 15, 10 and 5 per cent. In addition, there will be a $5 prize for high net single and $10 for high net triple.

A fractional point game is scheduled tonight at 8 o'clock at the Ridgely Casino in Stone Ridge.

KHS, Rondout Home Against Port, Highland

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

While Kingston and Rondout Valley have what promise to be easy home assignments against Port Jervis and Highland, Saugerties High meets rugged Beacon in a DCSL headliner tonight at the SHS gym.

Other action around the area has Middletown at Newburgh in the DUSO; Cardinal Farley at Arlington and Roosevelt at Wappingers in the DCSL and Ontario at New Paltz and Pine Bush at Marlboro in the UCAL.

A capsule comment of the games and a look at the standings:

Team	DUSO	Won	Lost
Newburgh	.....	6	0
Poughkeepsie	.....	5	1
Kingston	.....	5	2
Middletown	.....	3	3
Liberty	.....	2	6
Monticello	.....	1	5
Port Jervis	.....	1	6

PORT JERVIS AT KINGSTON—The locals won, 67-47, in an earlier meeting and should do as well, if not better this time. Coach John Gilligan's players have given three straight excellent performances and this game figures to be the last easy one in league play.

MIDDLETOWN AT NEWBURGH—Even if John Sileno isn't in uniform the defeated Goldies should be too strong for the visitors. Sileno missed the Beacon contest and his DUSO leaders were tagged with their first setback of the season. They will be seeking to bounce back tonight.

Team	DCSL	W	L
Saugerties	.....	5	1
Beacon	.....	5	1
Roosevelt	.....	5	1
Arlington	.....	2	4
Wappingers Falls	.....	1	5
Cardinal Farley	.....	0	6

BEACON AT SAUGERTIES—Fresh from their upset win at Newburgh the Bulldogs are on Cloud Nine. They nipped the Sawyers, 72-68, at Beacon but since then have lost center Frank McCray, their leading scorer. Al Hrdlicka and Keith Mills, who were out of the lineup in a losing effort at Rondout Valley, figure to play tonight. This one will be close and it could mean the championship.

CFMA AT ARLINGTON—It figures to be just a workout for the Admirals of Frank King. Arlington has given the top teams a tussel and it decided the Cadets in easy fashion in an early meeting.

ROOSEVELT AT WAPPINGERS—Watch out here. The Fallsmen are in the throes of the worst season since Dave Beverly has been head coach. However, the club has looked good in several games and is always tough at home. Roosevelt, after a good victory over Poughkeepsie, has to be wary of a big upset.

Team	UCAL	W	L
Marlboro	.....	8	0
Walkill	.....	7	1
Rondout Valley	.....	4	2
New Paltz	.....	2	6
Highland	.....	2	6
Ontario	.....	1	5
Pine Bush	.....	1	5

HIGHLAND AT RONDOUT—Coach Chick Meehan's club shouldn't have much trouble here. Highland picked up its second win of the season against Ontario but the Ganders are a contending club. They looked good in beating Saugerties on Tuesday.

ONTEORA AT NEW PALTZ—Nothing at stake as both clubs have had disappointing years. Ken Freer plays with the Huguenots and he should make the difference.

PINE BUSH AT MARLBORO—The Dukes have had some squeakers but they keep right on winning. This could be the 13th straight and it will mark the final league tilt for Marlboro until that big return match next Friday at Walkill.

Starlette Five, Clowns Win in Women's League

Sandy Gralin and Marilyn Long scored 9 points each to pace Starlettes to a 20-5 victory over Nightingales in the Women's City basketball league.

Melinda Laux hit 7 points to pace the Clowns in a 13-5 triumph over Sports.

Starlettes (20) — Rosemary Baker 2, Mary O'Brien, Sandy Gralin 9, Marilyn Long 9; Caro, Pastore, Jo Dell Harlow, Mary Ellen De Veau, Mary Mueller, Pat Klematis, Gladys Tomshaw.

Nightingales (5) — Mary Donaruma 4, Carol Oskay, Ginny Carpenters 1; Ellen Leverenz, Joyce Casella, Eetsy Collins.

Clowns (13) — Pat Burke 4, Melinda Laux 7, Marilyn Laux 2; Jane Davidson, Gayle Keator, Margie Harlow, Rosemary Spencer.

Sports (5) — Gina Bruck 2, Pat Toney 1; Barbara Corkery, Ginger Dickson 0, Terry Brennan 2, Pat Bruck.

Old Timers Name Trio For Baseball Hall Fame

Induction Set March 1 at Barn

The Old Timers Baseball Association committee today announced the names of three former area baseball players who will be honored at the association's 12th annual Hall of Fame dinner on March 1.

Scheduled for induction, OTBA president Albert Flanagan announced, are:

Earl (Gabby) Benjamin of Saugerties, former catcher who will be honored at the association's 12th annual Hall of Fame dinner on March 1.

George (Shikey) Bolechowicz of Kingston, a star in the downtown era in the 1920s with the old Elm A.C. and Kingston All Stars. He was also a catcher.

Charles J. Tiano, Freeman sports editor, a native of East Kingston, who played first base and the outfield for the Kingston All Stars and other Ulster County teams.

The three new entries mark the 24th, 25th, and 26th inductions in the local baseball Hall of Fame since the inaugural year of 1950.

John J. McCardle, general chairman of the event, also announced that Dick McCarthy, popular WKNY news and sports caster, would be the toastmaster for the dinner.

Efforts are being made to bring a prominent major league baseball personality to Kingston as guest speaker.

The dinner is scheduled at The Barn on March 1 and is open to the male public.

AL Cage Powers Play

Turnabout Fair Play

Turnabout is fair play. Last weekend the Pittsburgh Rens knocked the Chicago Majors out of first place in the Eastern Division of the American Basketball League. Thursday night the Majors knocked the Rens off the top and took over again.

A turnout of 427 at Waukegan, Ill., saw the Majors make it two straight over the Rens, 109-105. The Kansas City Steers nipped the Hawaii Chiefs 92-91 at Honolulu in Thursday's other league game.

Danbury, Quinnipiac Next for State Hawks

State University Hawks of New Paltz hit the road for a brief foray into Connecticut tonight and Saturday.

Coach Doug Sheppard's, 4-7 for the season, play at Danbury State tonight and Saturday night take on the crack Quinnipiac College cagers.

Danbury is playing around the 500 mark, but Quinnipiac is 8-4 and has one of its typical small school powerhouses. The Hawks will be nearly at full strength. Sam Mandia of Marlboro dropped out of school during the mid-term exam, but a sophomore, Mike Hazelton of Copaque, L. I., has been moved up to the varsity where he joins his brother, Al.

Bob Dillman carries a 17.5 shooting average against the Connecticut opponents. Mike Kellett is runnerup with 13 points. The Hawks had put together their best streak of the season — three straight — before bowing to the C. W. Post just before the mid-term break.

Larsen Signs Frisco Pact

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Don Larsen, a pitcher whose 1962 performance could prove a major factor in the success or failure of the San Francisco Giants, came to terms with the Giants today.

However, two Detroit Tiger stars were reported having salary troubles.

Larsen, 32, and southpaw Billy Pierce came to the Giants from the Chicago White Sox this winter in a trade. Larsen, a 6-foot-4 right-hander, had an 8-2 record in 33 games with the White Sox last year.

His biggest years were with the New York Yankees in the 50's. He pitched the only perfect game in World Series history on Oct. 8, 1956, when he beat the Dodgers, 2-0.

Hard-hitting Al Kaline held a conference with Tigers Vice President Rick Ferrell Thursday and the Detroit executive reported "very little progress."

Kaline had 19 home runs and 82 runs batted in last season, and his .324 batting average was runnerup for the American League batting crown to teammate Norm Cash, who also is balking at Ferrell's contract offer.

Sports Talk

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

When Deacon Bill McKechnie was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame this week, it made a one-time local athletic star a mighty happy man.

That would have to be Bernard A. Culleton, who through his athletic years and most of his adult life has been known as "Bud Culleton."

The former Kingston Colonial pitching wizard went directly from Judge Schirick's semi-pro club to the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League, where McKechnie was the manager. Culleton played under The Deacon in 1924-25-26.

Culleton quickly wired his old manager congratulations when the Veterans Committee of the Hall of Fame picked McKechnie and Edd Roush for induction next July, along with the two "moderns"—Jackie Robinson and Bob Feller.

• An Uncanny Attribute:

Asked if McKechnie possessed any particular outstanding trait that contributed to his many successes, Culleton recalled:

"The most impressive thing I can recall was his uncanny ability to sense when a pitcher was losing his stuff."

"It was like a sixth sense with McKechnie," continued Culleton. "I recall vividly sitting on the bench with McKechnie in those years and on many occasions, he would bolt from the dugout and call time long before anybody else sensed that the Pirate pitcher was losing his stuff."

McKechnie had a fair to middling staff to handle in those days, too. Among his stars were Lee Meadows, Emil Yde, a rookie sensation; Remy Kremer, Vic Aldridge, "Jughandle" Johnny Morrison and veteran Babe Adams. Adams, then in the sere of a brilliant Pittsburgh career, had won three games in a World Series against Ty Cobb's Detroit Tigers in 1909.

• A Man of Diplomacy:

Culleton was always impressed by McKechnie's diplomatic handling of his players.

"No matter how outrageous a boner a ball player pulled, McKechnie never embarrassed the man or made derogatory remarks about him in public," Culleton recalls. "He would always do his chastising in private." Obviously, McKechnie was not a John McGraw or Casey Stengel.

McKechnie served his first major league stewardship with the Pirates after being active as an infielder from 1907 to 1920. He piloted three different teams to National League pennants—Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cincinnati.

The 1925 Pirates, immediate forerunners of the Paul and Lloyd Waner era, toppled Bucky Harris' Washington Senators and fabled Walter Johnson in a hectic seven-game series in 1925. Johnson, The Big Train who was a charter selection to the Hall of Fame, beat Lee Meadows in the opener, 4 to 1, on five hits and shut them out on six hits in the fourth game. The Pirates squared the series at 3-3 at Pittsburgh on Oct. 13, 1925.

• The Big Train Sputtered:

The next day came the climactic showdown. Bucky Harris decided to go with aging and weary Johnson and stayed with him through a tumultuous brawl which the Pirates won with a three-run rally in the bottom of the eighth. The Senators knocked Vic Aldridge out of the box with a 4-run rally in the first inning. He was followed by Morrison, Aldridge and Oldham, who blanked the Senators in the top of the ninth for the win and World Series title.

The power was all on the Senators' side in that series, but the Pirates salvaged the larger paycheck. Goose Goslin and Joe Harris each slugged three homers for the American League.

Culleton recalled some of his 1925 Pittsburgh teammates, two of whom have been selected for the Hall of Fame—Harold (Pie) Traynor and Max Carey, the base stealing whiz. The others in the "varsity" array against Washington were Eddie Moore, Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, Clyde Barnhart, Glenn Wright and Earl Smith, the catcher.

• He Was One of the Best:

Now 74, McKechnie lives in pleasant retirement at Bradenton, Fla., where his neighbor is the man who will accompany him into the Hall of Fame—Edd Roush.

"Bill McKechnie was a fine man and great manager," said Culleton. "He richly deserved a spot in the Hall of Fame and I'm very happy for him and proud to have been on one of his teams."

Bonnies Check Seaton Hall But Werkan Hits 40

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Bonaventure beat Seton Hall's basketball team, 113-110, in New York Thursday night, in spite of the 40-point sharpshooting of the Pirates' Nick Werkan.

In other play involving an Upstate team, Niagara's Purple Eagles defeated visiting St. Francis (N.Y.), 60-53.

Werkan, a sophomore sensation, came into the game in Madison Square Garden Thursday night with a 33-point average. The nation's No. 2 major school scorer, he shot six for eight in the first half and 9 for 21 in the second, to tally 40 points.

Miles Aiken paced the Bonnies with 29 points.

The Bonnies have won 9 and lost five. Seton Hall has won nine and lost four.

Joe Maddrey, a junior, was ineligible for play last semester at Niagara but made up for it in his first game last night. He had 21 points. Kenny Glenn, another junior, had 20. Tim Rafferty was high man for St. Francis with 20.

Leonard Leads But Pros Watch Arnold Palmer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—

Just a few years ago the golfers called Ben Hogan "The Hawk" and no one cared to have the great Texan close enough to swoop in and claw up their chances.

The pros felt much the same today about Arnold Palmer, the current "Hawk" of the game, as they head into the third round of the $50,000 Palm Springs Classic.

True, Arnold was four strokes behind the leader, Canada's seasoned Stan Leonard, who forged ahead with rounds of 65-67 for 132. But there are three more rounds to go in this 90-hole marathon and it appeared significant that Palmer now has whipped the two toughest of the four courses in play, Tamarisk and Eldorado country clubs.

Neither Leonard, who observed his 47th birthday today, nor any of the others in front of Palmer at this stage can claim this advantage.

Palmer's 69-67-136 left him eight strokes under par 72 for the two courses. And today, Palmer played the less demanding par 71 Thunderbird Country Club.

Setting out today two shots off the pace were Jacky Cupit, Longview, Tex., who celebrated his 24th birthday Thursday with a 7-under par 66 at Indian Wells Country Club, and Gardner Dickenson.

Alone at 135 was Neil Coles of the 1961 British Ryder Cup team, whose 67 at Tamarisk was his best round of the current California tour.

Jim Ferree's 69 at Tamarisk left him alone at 137. The 138 group included Jimmy Demaret and U.S. Open champion Gene Littler. Gene's 67-71 was achieved at Tamarisk and Eldorado.

The going was rougher for some of the other name players Thursday. Young Rex Baxter Jr., who shared the first round lead with Leonard at 65, took a 74, and Doug Ford, who had an initial 66, fell back with a 74.

Rangers Grab Fourth Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York's revived Rangers have reclaimed fourth place in the National Hockey League—but holding on to it may be a different matter.

The Rangers took the day off today to celebrate back-to-back victories over Boston that snapped a 10-game losing string and pushed them ahead of Detroit. But then they face the league's best: the second-place Leafs in Toronto Saturday and pace-setting Montreal in New York Sunday.

The Rangers completed the sweep of the two-game set with Boston with a 5-3 victory Thursday night.

That, combined with Chicago's 7-4 decision over the Red Wings, put New York one-point ahead of Detroit in fourth place—the last playoff spot.

Montreal's 5-2 triumph over Toronto extended the streaking Canadians' record to 11 straight and improved their leading margin to six points.

Warriors Want Win Over Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philadelphia Warriors have a score to settle in Boston tonight. This time, however, it isn't against their old National Basketball Association rivals the Boston Celtics. This score-settling is with the lowly New York Knickerbockers, in last place in the Eastern Division.

The Warriors play the Knicks in the first game of a double-header and are looking for revenge. New York is the only team owning a victory over the Warriors in their last nine outings. Boston leads the division by seven games.

Philadelphia, with Wilt Chamberlain scoring 53 points, cooled off Cincinnati 130-109 Thursday night, but failed to make up any ground on Boston, which stopped Los Angeles' five-game winning string 130-115 in College Park, Md.

Success Story

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — (NEA)—Coach Gene Wettstein has led Penn State to seven national and nine Eastern gymnas-tics championships.

Jack Ferraro Hits 695 in Classic

Jack Ferraro missed the coveted 700 circle by five sticks Thursday night, rocking the maples for 695 on solos of 224, 214, 257 in the Invitational Classic. It was the highest series rolled in the area.

Ralph Longendyke was runnerup with a 652 slam in the same league on games of 201, 224 and 227.

Jan Medallis, a 3-Man Classic kegger, fashioned 638 with 199, 208 and 231.

Other 600 scores in the area were:

John Ferraro, Classic, 212, 212, 205-629.

Randy Kelder, Classic, 181, 209, 233-623.

Joe Schatzel, Classic, 238, 190, 190-618.

Phil Battaglia, Classic, 177, 234, 202-613.

Mike Carlino, Classic, 190, 235, 181-606.

He will deliver the lectures Feb. 7, 8 and 9. Other cities to be visited include Elmira, New York, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Brooklyn and Binghamton.

-2 in Kingston

Frigid Weather Drops Mercury To Record Lows

An official -2 in Kingston recorded at 4 a. m. today is the coldest day of the winter season according to the City Engineer's Office.

The all-time record for Groundhog Day is -13 recorded last year. In February 1955, a similar spell of frigid weather prevailed and -13 was reported on February 1 and -3 on February 2.

Report Unofficial -6

An unofficial 6 below zero was reported in the Highland-Foxhall section of the city.

Zero or sub-zero readings were reported throughout the county with 4 recorded at Chester and New Paltz.

Overnight low readings at other Freeman check points were:

Woodstock -3; Saugerties Village, Hurley, Blue Mountain Reservoir, and Esopus Meadows Light Station, all -2; Tilton, Ellenville, Kingston Thruway Interchange and Browns Station at Ashokan Reservoir, all zero.

No Accumulation
Snow flurries in the northern and western portion of Ulster County last night left slight accumulations, not seriously affecting highway conditions this morning.

According to the Associated Press, New Yorkers bundled up today for the worst, general Arctic cold of the season with temperatures ranging officially down to 37 below and unofficially to 45 below zero.

Several schools were closed and motorists struggled with stalled automobiles. Even the groundhog needed an extra fur.

It was third day of frigid weather. The weather bureau forecast a slight warmup tonight and Saturday, along with snow flurries in most of the east and light snow in the western portion and east of Lake Ontario.

Register -45
Some thermometers in the Boonville area of the Adirondack foothills registered -45 below early today, but the official reading in the village was -32. Saranac Lake's official reading was -37.

At Canton, firemen battled a fire in the town hall while the temperature was 30 and more below.

The highest overnight low the weather bureau listed was 16 at New York City's LaGuardia Airport and Westhampton Beach, L.I. Other temperatures from the weather bureau:

Massena -28; Watertown -26; Plattsburgh -21; Syracuse, Utica and Rome -12; Glens Falls -10; Oneonta and Rochester -7; Albany and Buffalo -5; Binghamton -2; Poughkeepsie 3 above; Newburgh 5 above.

All Are Sub-Zero
Other unofficial readings, all in Northern New York and all sub-zero:
Lake Clear 41; Silver Lake 40; Beekmantown and Ellensburg Depot 36; Canton 34; Morrisville 32; Ogdensburg 24.

Miller to Run Again

Washington (AP)—Rep. William E. Miller, R-N. Y., announced today he will seek reelection to a seventh term in the House and hold on to the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee.

Northeast Gripped In Longest Cold Spell of Winter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Biting cold weather stung sections in New England and upstate New York today as the season's longest spell of frigid weather held a tight grip across most of the Northeast.

An unofficial reading of 45 below, was reported in Boonville, N.Y., in the foothills of the Adirondack Mountains, for the lowest mark in the icy belt.

Vary 62 Degrees

In New England, temperatures varied 62 degrees, with readings ranging from 37 below in Old Town, Maine, to 25 above in Nantucket Island. Boston had its coldest day of winter with a reading of 5 above.

Today was the third day of zero or below weather for much of New York state. Some frigid readings included -21 in Plattsburgh, -20 in Massena, -19 in Watertown, -10 in Syracuse, -5 in Albany and -4 in Buffalo. New York City was out of the extreme cold belt with a low of 18. Some snow fell in the metropolitan area, in downstate areas and in southern sections.

A larger snow belt extended from northeastern Ohio across Pennsylvania and as far south as Virginia. Freezing rain pelted the Roanoke-Lynchburg, Va., area.

Hit by Snow

Temperatures moderated in much of the Midwest which has been hit by snow and sub-zero cold this week. Below zero readings, however, were reported in parts of Michigan, including -11 in Saginaw and -1 in Detroit and Grand Rapids.

But International Falls, Minn., which had a low of -32 Thursday morning, warmed to 11 above this morning.

The warming trend appeared headed for much of the north central section, but colder weather was indicated for the Middle Mississippi Valley area eastward through the Carolinas.

Weather outside the cold belt was fairly mild for midwinter and skies were clear in most sections — affording the groundhog a chance to see his shadow and retreat into his hole. That means, as legend has it, more winter weather is on tap. But if there is no shadow, the groundhog will end his hibernation and spring weather will soon arrive.

More fog shrouded areas of California, with the heaviest in valley regions from Bakersfield to Sacramento.

Cold Will Stay, Some Snow Due

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Extended forecasts, by the Weather Bureau, for the period from 7 p. m. today to 7 p. m. Wednesday.

Eastern New York — Continued cold to midweek. Some moderation Saturday and Sunday and cold again by midweek. Temperatures will average 3-6 degrees below normal. A little light snow Saturday and again about Monday or Tuesday. Intermittent periods of snow flurries. Total precipitation generally light.

Western New York — Temperatures will average 3-6 degrees above normal. Slow warming trend until Monday, then little change to Wednesday. Precipitation will average around one-half inch, melted, in occasional snow or flurries.

Temperatures — Normal temperatures range from daytime highs of 23-33 to nighttime lows of 5-10 north and 10-18 south.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz recommended to the Legislature today a bill that would make a misdemeanor any fraudulent and deceptive practices in the promotion, sale or construction of fall-out shelters.

"The time-worn gimmicks of the professional pitch-man - - - 'bait advertising', scare tactics, tricky credit schemes, deceptive pricing, high pressure sales promotion and other vicious practices - - - are being revived to promote the sale of shelters," Lefkowitz said.
